Experts see relatively mild flu season—hopefully!

Associated Press Writer

The chill creeping into the air brings the approach of the flu season, and it's time to start thinking about protection and treatment.

The widely predicted swine flu epidemic of 1975-76 never materialized. But new strains of influenza A virus, the kind that causes pandemics or world-wide outbreaks, usually appear every 10 years and the last major problem was in 1968, with the Hong Kong flu.

Experts meeting in Maryland recently said a wide variety of flu viruses was circulating in the world this year. They said they still expected a relatively mild flu season in the United States, but declined to make firm predictions in the aftermath of the swine flu incident.

Influenza is an acute respiratory illness, whose symptoms include fever, headache, coughing, sore throat, runny nose and muscular aches, especially in the lower back and eyes.

The disease is caused by one of three types of virus — A, B or C. Both type A and type B can result in epidemics, but the latter is usually much milder.

Flu outbreaks often occur suddenly. The disease spreads through areas, peaking in about three weeks and subsiding after another three to four weeks. From 20 to 50 per cent of the susceptible population may be affected, with the highest incidence among children aged 5 to 14.

Most patients recover from the flu within a week, although they may feel tired or run down for some time. In the aged or chronically ill, the disease is more serious and, together with pneumonia, influenza is the fifth leading cause of death in the United States.

Vaccines have been developed to help guard against influenza. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says studies have shown the vaccines can be 70 to 90 percent effective when matched to the current virus. The problem is that the viruses change their genetic makeup slightly every year, so annual revaccination is recommended.

Once you've got the flu, there is not much to do except go to bed, drink plenty of liquids and take aspirin to relieve some of the symptoms.

The symptoms of the flu — or any other virus, such as the one that causes the common cold — may be confused with allergies or bacterial infections. There are ways to tell the difference, however.

A runny nose, for example, is frequent with a complaint caused by a virus or allergy, but rare with one caused by bacteria. You probably won't have aching muscles as a result of an allergy or a bacteria, but you usually will with a virus. Both allergies and viruses will result in several symptoms, rather than a single complaint, such as a sore throat or earache. A bacterial ailment may infect only one part of the body. A cough is rare with an allergy, occasional with a bacteria and frequent with a virus. And dizziness usually accompanies a virus, but almost never is a sign of a bacteria or an allergy.

More information on influenza, what causes it and what is being done to combat it is available from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in a nine-page pamphlet, "Flu." It costs 35 cents. To get a copy, write: Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Russians encounter space failure

CHARRED PAPERS A fireman pours water on the burned bales of newspaper at the Garden State Paper Co., 2205 Mt. Vernon Ave., Pomona, this morning. About 2,000 tons of paper had burned thus far.

Cosmonauts unable to link, returning

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts failed to link up with an orbiting space laboratory today in a major disappointment for the Russians at the start of their third decade of space exploration.

The Soviet news agency Tass said flight commander Lt. Col. Vladimir Kovalenok and flight engineer Valery Ryumin were unable to dock with the Salyut-6 space station and were preparing to return to earth in the Soyuz-25 spacecraft after little more than one day in orbit.

Tass gave no indication what caused the docking failure. "Because of some deviations from the planned docking regime, the linkup operation was cancelled," Tass said.

The failure was the latest in a series that have dogged the Russians' second generation of manned spacecraft.

The Soyuz-23 mission a year ago was aborted after the spacecraft failed to complete a docking maneuver. In the interim, Soyuz-24 successfully completed a 19-day mission after linking up with the Salyut-5 space lab.

Soyuz-25 was launched Sunday from the same pad at the Baikonur space center from which Sputnik, the world's first man-made space satellite, opened the space age on Oct. 4, 1957.

"It's the beginning of the third decade of the space age and it's going to be a working decade," Kovalenok said as he climbed aboard the spacecraft. "There's a lot of work to be done."

He and Ryumin were assigned to dock on to the space laboratory sent into orbit on Sept. 29 and then move aboard her for a program of experiments.

Their specific tasks were not announced, but Kovalenok told a televised news conference before they took off: "Ours is a simple goal — to learn as much as possible about our earth so that we can contribute to making life on earth better."

Tass said the cosmonauts carried with them a copy of the new Soviet constitution adopted Friday.

It is the first manned Soviet space flight since the Soyuz-24 cosmonauts linked up with an earlier space lab, Salyut-5, last February. That mission lasted 19 days and included photography and scientific observations.

Salyut-5 was destroyed by radio signal from the earth on Aug. 8 after 16 months in orbit.

The United States has not sent up a manned space flight since the joint Soviet-American flight in July 1975.

The Soviet Union launched its first manned space ship with Yuri Gagarin aboard 16 years ago on April 12, 1961. Since then 34 Soviet cosmonauts have gone into space, but four of them were killed on their return flights.

4 die in valley accidents

By JOE FIRMAN

Four persons, including a 13-month-old child, were killed in four separate accidents in the valley over the weekend.

The baby, Kyle Uasike Bloomfield of Diamond Bar, was killed when he crawled under a pickup truck with camper parked in the driveway of his home Friday afternoon. Not seeing the child, Sakopo T. Feao, a relative visiting at the home, got in the truck and drove it out to the street, running over the boy. He died Saturday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Patricia Sue Richards, 24, of Walnut, was killed when the van in which she was riding collided with a truck-trailer on Archibald Avenue north of Edison Avenue, Chino area, Saturday night.

The truck driver, Walter Buechner, 51, of Banning was not injured. The driver of the van, James H. Parham, 24, of Ontario, and another passenger, Cynthia E. Fowler, 26, were treated at Chino General Hospital.

A West Covina youth was killed when his car went off Highway 39 south of the ranger station in the San Gabriel Mountains and rolled down a 500-foot embankment at 2:30 Sunday morning.

Christopher W. Encheff, 18, was killed, and his two passengers were injured. They were Thomas Augostine, 18, and Gustava Delgado, 19, both of Monrovia.

The fourth fatality was an unidentified woman who was apparently struck by a car as she walked on the eastbound off-ramp of the San Bernardino Freeway at Milliken Avenue, Cucamonga area, early Sunday morning.

There were no witnesses to the accident. The body, clad in blue Levi jacket and trousers, a black blouse and brown boots, was found by a passing motorist and turned over to the coroner's office. The highway patrol said the woman had no identification on her person.

Hint arson in paper plant fire

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

A fire, apparently deliberately set, consumed 2,000 tons of reclaimed newspapers at a Pomona paper plant, and was still burning this morning, said fire officials.

Estimated value of the loss in the fire at Garden State Paper Co., 2205 Mt. Vernon Ave., was $120,000.

Fire officials said they picked up a mental patient for questioning in connection with the blaze. The man, whom firemen declined to identify, was found wandering around the plant Sunday morning.

The blaze was basically contained several hours after it broke out at 5:46 a.m. Sunday. However, flames still could be seen shooting up from inside of the bales of newspapers today.

Stanley Bazela, manufacturing manager for the firm, said it may take some time to completely extinguish the fire because it is hard to knock down "inside." The newspapers are worth $50 to $60 a ton, he noted.

The man found wandering around the plant was "where he shouldn't have been, so we picked him up," said one fire official.

The man was taken to the Metropolitan State Hospital near Norwalk. He was reported being a former patient at a Pomona halfway house.

The blaze, which started Sunday in the storage areas on the paper plant's east and south sides, was difficult to knock down, according to fire officials.

"We're digging in and knocking the last sparks out now," said a spokesman. There was no damage to the main buildings.

Siege ends with death of couple

EL CAJON (AP) — A 27-year-old woman and her estranged husband were found shot to death early today in her parents' home following an eight-hour siege, authorities said.

Michael Lowe, 27, of Ramona, had held his estranged wife, Cecelia, and their 23-month-old son hostage since 4 p.m. Sunday, sheriff's deputies said. He reportedly shot the woman and himself about midnight.

Deputies threw tear gas into the house a few hours later and found the couple dead. They waited because they had not wanted to gas the child, whose cries could be heard outside, the deputies added.

The child was taken to a hospital for observation.

Authorities said Lowe held his wife and child hostage after his mother-in-law called police. Lowe had reportedly struck Mrs. Frank Karash, 50, in the face when she ran to a neighbor's house to ask for help, police said.

Montclair woman rescued; trapped in car seven hours

A Montclair woman lay trapped in the wreckage of her car for seven hours before she was rescued Sunday morning after the car went off Mt. Baldy Road south of Shinn Road and toppled down a 150-foot embankment.

Pat P. Hundley, 33, told the highway patrol she lost control of the car on a curve. Later a passing hiker heard her cries and summoned the mountain rescue team. She was taken by sheriff's helicopter to San Dimas Community Hospital where she was reported in fair condition this morning.

2 Irish women win Nobel peace prizes

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Nobel peace prizes were awarded today to Amnesty International and two Northern Irish women.

The 1977 prize was won by Amnesty International, the London-based organization that works in behalf of political prisoners.

Mrs. Betty Williams and Miss Mairead Corrigan were given the 1976 prize for their movement seeking to bring peace between feuding Roman Catholics and Protestants in their homeland. The prize had not been awarded last year.

There was widespread sentiment last year for giving the Nobel prize to Miss Corrigan, 24, and Mrs. Williams, 33. But the campaign for them was launched late, and their nominations were received after the deadline.

Instead, 22 Norwegian newspapers raised $325,000 and awarded it to them last year as a "People's Peace Prize." They used the money to set up a trust fund to provide care for orphans, create jobs and begin other community projects to ease the devastation of the Ulster fighting.

The two Roman Catholic women began their movement after Mrs. Williams saw three children killed by a runaway car whose guerrilla driver had been shot by British soldiers in Belfast. Miss Corrigan was the aunt of the slain children.

Braving threats on their lives by extremists, they organized peaceful marches by thousands of Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland, the Irish Republic and England.

Machinists, aerospace workers strike Lockheed in pay dispute

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lockheed machinists and aerospace workers struck three California plants today as contract negotiations broke down in a dispute over wages and seniority.

But a settlement could be reached soon if — as expected — members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers cut their demands and management increases its offer, said IAM spokesman Neil Van der Cooke.

The strike affects 13,500 union members at Lockheed-California Co. plants in Burbank and Palmdale and at Sunnyvale's Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. plant in Northern California. Pickets were reported at the three plants.

Negotiations with a federal mediator were not immediately scheduled.

Lockheed-California manufactures the L-1011 Tri-Star commercial jetliner in Palmdale and Navy patrol craft in Burbank and employs a total of 15,000 workers. The Sunnyvale plant employs 16,000 workers, including 5,000 union members, a plant spokesman said.

Lockheed spokesman Jim Ragsdale here said the plants would remain open.

The strike is the second major one in the aerospace industry this year. About 23,000 workers walked out last week at Boeing Inc. in Seattle.

Van der Cooke said union members voted for the strike this weekend. The vote for a walkout was 86.1 per cent at Burbank and 88.6 per cent at Palmdale Sunday and 77 per cent at Sunnyvale Saturday.

Union members at the Lockheed plant in Georgia voted Sunday not to strike.

Negotiations, which began last July, ended last Wednesday when the two sides failed to agree on wages, pensions and seniority.

Lockheed is offering a 3.5 per cent annual salary increase the first year, three per cent the second and three per cent the third year of the contract. The union is seeking eight per cent the first year, five per cent the second and four per cent the third year. The union originally had sought a 10 per cent annual wage increase.

"Their first year's offer is 3.5 per cent and ours is eight per cent," Van der Cooke said, "and I'm sure that they'll come up and we'll come down."

"No workers will go hungry, or their rent isn't going to go unpaid, or their mortgage isn't going to go unpaid," Van der Cooke added. "The union does have a strike fund that amounts to $40 a week per person, but there will also be help with mortgages and such. Welfare cases we can take care of."

Meanwhile, negotiations were continuing at Southern California plants of McDonnell-Douglas and Rockwell International. The machinists' union represents about 4,800 employes and the United Auto Workers represents about 6,000 at McDonnell Douglas, where the contract expires Oct. 16. About 7,000 employes are represented by the UAW at Rockwell, where the pact expired Oct. 1.

Nuremberg interpreter

Unique memories for grand jurist

OAKHURST, Calif. (AP) — Ursula Uphold brings a unique courtroom experience to her task of grand jury forewoman in Madera County. As a girl of 15, she was an interpreter at the Nuremberg war crime trials after World War II.

That experience was traumatic, Mrs. Uphold says, but it did not keep her from accepting an appointment in July to head the grand jury, which returns criminal indictments and investigates county offices.

"On the grand jury, you can work creatively and imaginatively and give opinions," she said. "But to sit at the (war crimes) trials and judge people was a tremendous responsibility. I hope I never have to do it again."

Mrs. Uphold said she had been unable to talk about the trial of leaders of Nazi Germany until recently and still cannot recall all her experiences there.

"I don't know how I could possibly tell you how it was to be confronted with those responsibilities, especially at that age," she said in an interview. "To hear about those atrocities and wrongdoings you never heard before was just devastating."

Mrs. Uphold said she put the trials, which ended in 1946, out of her mind once her duties there ended.

"You know, I haven't seen any films about Nuremberg since I left. I've never read a book on it. ... It was such a painful experience," she said.

Born Ursula Gilich, daughter of a French countess and a German count, she was unconscious for five weeks after their Berlin home was bombed in 1945. But, she said, her translating stint was worse.

The interpreters had to translate testimony for up to an hour at a time in any of four languages — English, French, German or Russian.

"The pressure was so great," she said. "You couldn't take that for any length of time. Nobody could. The Americans knew that and would relieve us by sending us to do investigative work or transfer us to other jobs."

And other Germans resented the interpreters working for Allied intelligence, often throwing rocks and yelling at them as they entered an internment camp, she said.

"We even went so far as to change our names — not officially, but to avoid harassment," Mrs. Uphold said. "I just had to get out."

In late 1948 she emigrated to America, married a college professor and moved to this central California area when her husband took a post at Fresno State College.

Edwards: Nation's testing ground for war and space

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — They whine and roar over this remote stretch of sun-baked sands — the nation's newest aerospace ideas taking wing.

The strange bird in the spotlight now is the Space Shuttle Enterprise, being readied for its fourth glide and landing test Wednesday.

But the brief flights of the Enterprise are a small fraction of the test flying over this desert proving ground where aviation history has been made time and again since World War II.

The site of the first U.S. jet plane flight in 1942, the airbase reverberates daily with the roar of the latest aircraft — twice-the-speed of sound fighter planes, flying tank-killers, transports, the lame-duck B-1 bomber.

Now that President Carter has ordered that the B-1 not be produced in numbers, the three test bombers built previously nest here like the last survivors of some endangered bird species.

The 301,000 acres of desert plains and dry lake beds contains both the U.S. Air Force Flight Test Center, where most new military craft are put through their paces, and the National Aeronautics and Space Agency's Dryden Flight Research Center, located on the air base but operated by NASA. Formerly the High-Speed Flight Station, Dryden is where basic aeronautical research is carried out, an example being rocket plane flights in the 1960s that carried man to the edges of space and paved the way for manned space flight.

In Los Angeles, 100 miles to the south, airplane noise is a cause for lawsuits. But "When people hear a supersonic boom out here, they say, 'That's progress,'" said Dr. David Scott, the former astronaut, now director of Dryden. The cities adjacent to Edwards are so involved economically with the base and nearby Rockwell International, Lockheed and McDonnell Douglas plants that the whole area is dubbed "Aerospace Valley."

The perpetually clear weather (only four inches of rainfall a year) allows flying about 350 days a year and the lake beds — the largest, Rogers, is 44 square miles — are naturally flat smooth emergency landing fields.

Here, in 1947, the X-1 rocket plane hurtled through the sound barrier for the first time; speed and altitude records were set by the short-winged X-15s in the 1960s; a small flock of wingless "lifting bodies" were dropped from carrier planes to test aerodynamic designs that bore fruit in the Space Shuttle.

The Air Force has tested such exotic birds as the B-70 bomber, at the time the largest jet aircraft in the world and the forerunner of supersonic transports; the SR-71 spy plane, and more recently, new-generation fighter planes such as the F-15 and the F-16 lightweight fighter.

The base has an elite corps of test pilots who put the new craft through their paces. Less and less are they the "scarf-in-the-breeze" daredevils of the movies; in these days of ever more accurate wind tunnel tests and computer simulations, their trade is becoming safer.

Still, one has only to walk into Chapel No. 1 to see a large memorial board bearing engraved plaques honoring the 118 pilots and engineers who have died on flights connected withe Edwards projects.

Some of the dead have given their names to streets on the base — Popsun, Wolfe and Payne, for example. The base itself was named for Capt. Glen Edwards, killed in 1948 when the bodyless YF-49 "Flying Wing" crashed.

The latest fatalities occurred on May 26, 1976, in an Army Beechcraft that crashed off the base; only two more slots remain on the memorial board before it is completely filled with those who have sacrificed themselves for air progress.

Test pilots are turned out by the prestigious Air Force Test Pilot School here.

Deputies' mission: bring warring neighbors together

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

Two summers ago as the weight of idle hours uninterrupted by school hung heavy over two valley boys, the pair devised a new game to while away time.

They would, they decided, make up stories about their mothers, then sit back and watch the reaction.

Each would return home at the end of the day and approach his mother with a similar statement:

" Do you know what Jimmy's mother is saying about you?"

Then each would relate a concocted bizarre story to his mother. Both families living across the street from each other soon became enemies as a result of the fabricated tales.

Families involved then began enlisting support from other neighbors to combat the ever increasing visciousness of the stories. Soon battle lines were drawn. Incidents of nocturnal vandalism occurred. Sheriff's deputies were called in with increasing frequency to break up disputes. Field deputies turned the matter over to a little publicized department — Los Angeles County sheriff's community relations division.

Sgt. Leonard Tyco, who heads the division, went to the neighborhood and began questioning neighbors to track down rumor sources.

Finally, Sgt. Tyco traced the source to the two boys — 8 and 10-years-old — who admitted they initiated all rumors as a lark in an incident which ended on the brink of assault or worse, Tyco said.

In such matters, Tyco likened his office to a doctor who advocates preventative medicine rather than waiting for an illness to treat. Numbers of such cases are staggering, he said.

Quite often such incidents are fomented by families in which the father is absent from home for long periods of time, leaving the mother to discipline the children which quite often is not done.

Neighbors become agitated at activities of the unruly children, arguments break out and animosity hangs over the neighborhood. This may breed acts of vandalism and open confrontations.

Tyco said there is a three-pronged plan to effect an end to such disputes before serious incidents occur.

First step is to question all parties involved at their homes usually over a cup of coffee.

He obtains an assessment of the situation from each party involved but does not immediately offer a solution nor relate any information that others have told him in the privacy of their homes.

Tyco then assesses the problem as he sees it. Usually the problem began as a simple misunderstanding or minor incident such as a neighbor's dog tipping over a trash can the night before trash collection or something equally as petty.

Tyco then returns to the neighborhood and explains the roots of the problem to individual families. This normally quashes the problem before it escalates.

If that fails, however, Tyco asks leaders of both factions to come to San Dimas substation voluntarily. The sterile atmosphere helps bring out that they really want the problem ended and the matter is dissected and solved, Tyco said. Often they shake hands and walk out.

But if the above two methods of alleviating neighborhood disputes fails, Tyco organizes a mass meeting at a school or church close to but not in the neighborhood.

Neutral ground is a psychological factor.

Tyco said the first hour of such a meeting normally is taken up with "letting off steam."

"Everyone ventilates," he said. Name calling, profanity and extreme hostility surfaces during this first hour, he said.

During the second hour, people begin to break down a bit and come up with remarks like "We may not like you, but we don't want to continue living like this," Tyco said.

Then Tyco during the second hour begins identifying the problems with one word each written on a blackboard. "It's funny," he said, "there normally are four or five problems, never three or six — almost always four or five."

Relief begins to set in the audience at this time. "Some of them say 'Are those the reasons for all this trouble?' They can't believe their problems stem from such simple sources."

Problems are discussed after they are identified and they begin to feel humble.

Tyco said he has staged only seven third-stage meetings in 2½ years.

Ounce of prevention programs are just a part of Tyco's community relations program.

He and his staff teaches regularly at area schools, explaining what the law allows and forbids. Among the topics is a program aimed at cutting down parties where distributed flyers attract large, noisy crowds.

Such parties often spark confrontations with police agencies, he said.

Got a million? Buy Fat Woman

SAN SIMEON (AP) — For sale: one Fat Woman, complete with five bungalows, two apartment units, a gas station, a grocery story and a cafe.

The town of Gorda, which means Fat Woman in Spanish, is up for grabs. Larry Anderson of Los Angeles, owner of the nine-acre hamlet halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, wants $950,000. The town, population 20, was named for a nearby rock with vague feminine contours.

Realtor Pat O'Shaughnessy of Redondo Beach says he's confident he'll find a buyer.

"There are people who would like to be able to stand up at a cocktail party and say, 'Well, I've got to go visit my town now,'" he said.

O'Shaughnessy helped sell Harmony, population 15, for $360,000 this year. Harmony, near San Luis Obispo, is known for an unusual monument: a toilet-turned-planter where, the marker says, Rudolph Valentino once answered "a call of nature."

Anderson, who would not disclose why he's selling Gorda, said he built the cafe and the store after buying the land 20 years ago.

Gorda has its history, according to residents.

"This used to be a French restaurant," said Claire Bliss, proprietor of the Mexican cafe. "But the crazy woman who ran it shot a guy who was drinking beer at the gas station one night. She's gone now."

Another resident said he's been "a gas station jockey, truck driver, cook, fisherman, janitor. I used to be married to a woman who's now married to a newspaper publisher. Can't tell you her name, though, because we never actually got divorced."

RUNWAY MISMATCH

A light plane, heavily damaged, lies beneath the tail section of a Super Guppy cargo plane that went out of control Sunday at Van Nuys Airport. The big cargo plane was landing when a tire blew out. Its safety system failed and the plane veered off course and struck the small plane, which was parked and unoccupied. Two other planes were damaged but no one was injured.

Machinists, aerospace workers strike Lockheed in pay dispute

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lockheed machinists and aerospace workers struck three California plants today as contract negotiations broke down in a dispute over wages and seniority.

But a settlement could be reached soon if — as expected — members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers cut their demands and management increases its offer, said IAM spokesman Neil Van der Cooke.

The strike affects 13,500 union members at Lockheed-California Co. plants in Burbank and Palmdale and at Sunnyvale's Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. plant in Northern California. Pickets were reported at the three plants.

Negotiations with a federal mediator were not immediately scheduled.

Lockheed-California manufactures the L-1011 Tri-Star commercial jetliner in Palmdale and Navy patrol craft in Burbank and employs a total of 15,000 workers. The Sunnyvale plant employs 16,000 workers, including 5,000 union members, a plant spokesman said.

Lockheed spokesman Jim Ragsdale here said the plants would remain open.

The strike is the second major one in the aerospace industry this year. About 23,000 workers walked out last week at Boeing Inc. in Seattle.

Van der Cooke said union members voted for the strike this weekend. The vote for a walkout was 86.1 per cent at Burbank and 88.6 per cent at Palmdale Sunday and 77 per cent at Sunnyvale Saturday.

Union members at the Lockheed plant in Georgia voted Sunday not to strike.

Negotiations, which began last July, ended last Wednesday when the two sides failed to agree on wages, pensions and seniority.

Lockheed is offering a 3.5 per cent annual salary increase the first year, three per cent the second and three per cent the third year of the contract. The union is seeking eight per cent the first year, five per cent the second and four per cent the third year. The union originally had sought a 10 per cent annual wage increase.

"Their first year's offer is 3.5 per cent and ours is eight per cent," Van der Cooke said, "and I'm sure that they'll come up and we'll come down."

"No workers will go hungry, or their rent isn't going to go unpaid, or their mortgage isn't going to go unpaid," Van der Cooke added. "The union does have a strike fund that amounts to $40 a week per person, but there will also be help with mortagages and such. Welfare cases we can take care of."

Meanwhile, negotiations were continuing at Southern California plants of McDonnell-Douglas and Rockwell International. The machinists' union represents about 4,800 employes and the United Auto Workers represents about 6,000 at McDonnell Douglas, where the contract expires Oct. 16. About 7,000 employes are represented by the UAW at Rockwell, where the pact expired Oct. 1.

Nuremberg interpreter

Unique memories for grand jurist

OAKHURST, Calif. (AP) — Ursula Uphold brings a unique courtroom experience to her task of grand jury forewoman in Madera County. As a girl of 15, she was an interpreter at the Nuremberg war crime trials after World War II.

That experience was traumatic, Mrs. Uphold says, but it did not keep her from accepting an appointment in July to head the grand jury, which returns criminal indictments and investigates county offices.

"On the grand jury, you can work creatively and imaginatively and give opinions," she said. "But to sit at the (war crimes) trials and judge people was a tremendous responsibility. I hope I never have to do it again."

Mrs. Uphold said she had been unable to talk about the trial of leaders of Nazi Germany until recently and still cannot recall all her experiences there.

"I don't know how I could possibly tell you how it was to be confronted with those responsibilities, especially at that age," she said in an interview. "To hear about those atrocities and wrongdoings you never heard before was just devastating."

Mrs. Uphold said she put the trials, which ended in 1946, out of her mind once her duties there ended.

"You know, I haven't seen any films about Nuremberg since I left. I've never read a book on it. ... It was such a painful experience," she said.

Born Ursula Gilich, daughter of a French countess and a German count, she was unconscious for five weeks after their Berlin home was bombed in 1945. But, she said, her translating stint was worse.

The interpreters had to translate testimony for up to an hour at a time in any of four languages — English, French, German or Russian.

"The pressure was so great," she said. "You couldn't take that for any length of time. Nobody could. The Americans knew that and would relieve us by sending us to do investigative work or transfer us to other jobs."

And other Germans resented the interpreters working for Allied intelligence, often throwing rocks and yelling at them as they entered an internment camp, she said.

"We even went so far as to change our names — not officially, but to avoid harassment," Mrs. Uphold said. "I just had to get out."

In late 1948 she emigrated to America, married a college professor and moved to this central California area when her husband took a post at Fresno State College.

Edwards: Nation's testing ground for war and space

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — They whine and roar over this remote stretch of sun-baked sands — the nation's newest aerospace ideas taking wing.

The strange bird in the spotlight now is the Space Shuttle Enterprise, being readied for its fourth glide and landing test Wednesday.

But the brief flights of the Enterprise are a small fraction of the test flying over this desert proving ground where aviation history has been made time and again since World War II.

The site of the first U.S. jet plane flight in 1942, the airbase reverberates daily with the roar of the latest aircraft — twice-the-speed of sound fighter planes, flying tank-killers, transports, the lame-duck B-1 bomber.

A flamboyant beauty

Ruth Elder who failed to fly Atlantic is dead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ruth Elder, a flamboyant beauty who gained world fame 50 years ago after a failed attempt to become the first woman to fly the Atlantic, is dead at 73.

She died quietly in her sleep Sunday at the home she shared with her husband of 21 years, Ralph P. King.

In the half-century that followed the flight that began at Roosevelt Field in New York Oct. 11, 1927, Miss Elder made movies, met a president, hobnobbed with royalty, married six times, made a lot of money — and spent it all. She was called the "Miss America of Aviation."

"She was a beautiful person, a real woman," said King, 79. "I tried to wake her, but she was dead."

King said his wife had been suffering from emphysema for several years and complications of a broken hip. They lived in an apartment in downtown San Francisco for the last six years.

It was nearly five months after Charles A. Lindbergh made the first solo flight across the Atlantic that Miss Elder and copilot-navigator George Haldeman took off eastward in a single engine Stinson dubbed "American Girl."

The papers that morning remarked on the fancy figure the 23-year-old lady pilot cut in her flight suit over checked golf knickers, checked stockings and two-tone shoes.

RUTH ELDER

As the world waited, the frail aircraft droned on toward Paris. They had flown 2,625 miles in 36 hours when an oil line cracked near the Azores.

Information from King, a family friend and published news stories described events that followed.

The aircraft had been without oil pressure for several minutes when a joyful vision appeared on the sea beneath them. Miss Elder dropped a message on its deck, asking assistance. The captain turned the ship toward nearest land, then had a message painted on deck.

It said the nearest land was 350 miles away at Cape Finistere off the coast of Spain. Too far. They ditched and were rescued by the ship, which docked at Lisbon, Portugal.

For Miss Elder, it was instant stardom. She was graciously welcomed by European royalty. She went on tour and made two silent movies with Richard Dix and Hoot Gibson. She had lunch with President Calvin Coolidge. Her bank account stood at $250,000.

"The money slipped through my fingers and soon there was nothing," she said in an interview years later.

En route, she acquired six husbands, including New York socialite Walter Camp Jr. She divorced them all — including six-times married Ralph King, her husband when she died.

Said King, "We were married about three years when she divorced me. One day she rang me. She says, 'Daddy, are you married again?' I says no, and she says, 'Can I come home?' I says yeah, and there it was. We got married again. A real love story."

King said his wife's remains will be cremated, then, in accordance with her wishes, following his death their ashes will be scattered over the sea from an airplane.

New Orleans waterfront closed down by strike

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The entire waterfront of the nation's No. 2 port was shut down today as longshoremen continued a general strike in defiance of union leaders' insistence that they go along with a national strike aimed only at containerized cargo.

Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL-CIO, had no immediate response to a third refusal by New Orleans workers to limit their strike to container vessels.

The ILA called a strike of container ships on Oct. 1, when work contracts expired, but the New Orleans workers called a general strike.

The longshoremen said they felt a limited strike would divide the union and help only workers in heavily containerized ports in the Northeast.

Sixty per cent of New York's cargo is containerized, but the figure is 25 per cent for New Orleans, which handles huge amounts of bulk materials and hand-loaded cargo.

Officials of the port, New Orleans' largest industry, have estimated the strike's cost to the local economy at $2 million per day.

A federal mediator has been meeting with the ILA and representatives of the shippers in Washington. Meetings were recessed on Thursday.

New Orleans longshoremen reaffirmed their wildcat action Saturday in a secret-ballot referendum, by a vote of 804 to 519. Fewer than half of the 3,000 eligible members voted.

"When other ports see what we did here, they will call for a general strike," predicted Norris Plaisance, a member of Local 1418's central committee.

Military divides on canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee resumed hearings on the Panama Canal treaty today with two former top military officers endorsing the agreement and a third condemning it.

Retired Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, onetime chief of naval operations, told the panel they had no concern about the future security of the canal under the agreements.

Increasing controversy has been generated in recent weeks over apparent differences between U.S. and Panamanian views of the pact — specifically whether it would allow the United States the right to use military forces to defend the canal's neutrality after it is turned over to Panama in the year 2000.

Taylor told the committee that as he understood the treaty, "We shall have the right to make our own unilateral judgment on matters of compliance with these criteria of neutrality and may act independintly if necessary to enforce them."

Zumwalt agreed, saying the treaty is an "important step" toward assuring that the United States will have the use of the canal in a crisis.

But retired Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, an outspoken opponent of the treaty, cited statements by Panamanian officials to the effect that the United States, under the treaty, would not have a right to intervene militarily to protect the canal after 2000.

Administration spokesmen have claimed the opposite, saying the treaty in no way limits U.S. freedom of action to protect the waterway.

Moorer, who also is a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs, said the conflicts in U.S. and Panamanian interpretations of the treaty "should be cleared up without delay."

Meanwhile, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said he believes the United States should reopen negotiations with Panama to clarify the U.S. defense rights, and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, suggested that members of the Senate panel visit Panama themselves before making a decision on the pact.

"I think we should sit down and renegotiate, especially the defense responsibility," Goldwater said in a taped interview telecast today on the "CBS Morning News." Although usually conservative on military questions, Goldwater until now has been among senators tending to favor the treaty.

Administration spokesmen have said the treaty does not limit any U.S. action, but Panamanian officials insist the treaty does not provide for intervention by the United States.

Church said in another broadcast interview that members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should visit the canal to get first-hand view of its defenses.

$11.7 million

Labor union insurance funds feared lost because of misuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor unions in eight states may lose several million dollars as the result of dealings by a California insurance man, according to testimony before a Senate subcommittee.

Testimony scheduled for today shows that as much as $11.7 million in insurance premiums may have been misused between 1973 and 1976 by Joseph Hauser, convicted in March of trying to bribe California union officials in exchange for their health insurance business.

In opening testimony before a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee, investigator W. Donald Gray said some funds were diverted to insurance agencies and other businesses owned by relatives or associates of labor union officials, who in turn helped steer business to Hauser.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said that as many as 20,000 union members could lose both their insurance coverage and premiums paid on their policies.

Gray said that some $5.8 million from premiums was "placed in investments which were at best questionable and at worst worthless and possibly fraudulent."

Among the unions involved in the complex scheme was the Teamsters' Central States Health and Welfare Fund, which may lose as much as $7 million in premiums paid over a period of three months.

The congressional investigation disclosed that of $39 million in premiums from union members collected by firms under Hauser's control, $13 million is unaccounted for.

The firms wrote various kinds of insurance for 20 labor union trust funds in Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Two CIM inmates stabbed

Two California Institution for Men inmates were admitted to the prison hospital this morning with stab wounds after they were allegedly attacked by other inmates in the Reception Center Central in two separate incidents Saturday.

CIM authorities reported that both victims, identified as Robert Phillip Brown, 18, and Roy Aguilara Billalba, 26, both of Los Angeles, had arrived at the institution's reception center on the same bus Friday.

Brown, authorities said, was watching a movie about 8:45 a.m. Saturday when he was suddenly attacked in the darkness. Guards turned on the lights to find Brown covered with blood. He suffered a slash of the neck in the incident. Guards said they found a prison-made knife on the floor near where the victim was stabbed. Brown was reported in good condition at the prison hospital. The victim was serving concurrent life terms for first and second degree murder.

The second incident about 11:10 a.m. Saturday left Billalba in "stable" condition with multiple knife wounds of the chest, shoulders and throat.

Authorities said Billalba, serving terms for burglary charges after his probation had been revoked, apparently was attacked in the dayroom of Sycamore Hall in the Reception Center Central. Guards reported finding four prison-made knives or shanks in the dayroom.

Authorities said that while the two inmates had arrived on the same bus together Friday, it was not believed the attacks were related. Prison investigators and Chino police are continuing the investigation. Several inmates are scheduled to be questioned by officers this morning.

Contract for library due

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors is expected to award a contract Tuesday for the construction of a $1.5 million library branch at Rowland Heights.

The low bidder for the job is Martin J. Jaska & Co. whose offer to construct the building for $967,000 was approved last week by checkers in the county engineer's office.

Stephen Koonce, director of the county's facilities department, said the rest of the cost has gone for purchase of the land and appurtenances.

The 15,000-square-foot branch of the county's library system will be built at the southeast corner of Nogales Street and Colima Road.

The branch will be three times as large as the present one at 18412 Colima Rd., according to Supervisor Peter Schabarum.

Construction is expected to start next month.

Ohio school closes doors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The first two of Ohio's financially troubled school districts have closed their doors and will remain shut until Jan. 1 unless voters approve emergency operating levies in special elections.

The Monroeville school district in Huron County and the Southern Local district in Meigs County closed their doors Friday. They will remain shut unless Monroeville voters approve a 9.1 mill levy Thursday. Southern Local voters will decide a 6.5 mill issue Oct. 25.

The shutdowns affect nearly 2,000 pupils — 892 in the Monroeville schools and 1,106 in Southern Local.

The only other school district which has been authorized for closing by the state superintendent of public education is Toledo, where 54,000 pupils face a final day of classes Oct. 28.

In Cleveland, school district officials have said they are running out of money because of cash-flow problems with the state and may have to close the schools after Oct. 17.

Ontario woman pushes assailant down stairs

A 26-year-old Ontario woman accosted by a man as she walked up the steps of her apartment Sunday night managed to push him down the stairs and escape, police reported.

Police said the man grabbed the woman from behind as she walked up the stairs and placed his hand over her mouth saying, "Keep Quiet. Don't scream and don't say anything." The woman managed to break the man's grip, turned around and pushed him down the stairs, police said.

Officers said the commotion on the stairs brought several other witnesses to the scene who chased the man west on I Street near where the incident occurred.

Police said it was unknown if the man was injured in the fall.

The man was described as white, 25 to 26 years of age, 165 to 170 pounds, with light brown hair down to his shoulders. He was wearing a short sleeve button-down brown shirt and brown pants.

Injured women flee after crash

The accident was at Garey Avenue south of Grand Avenue where the northbound auto jumped the curb before hitting the tree. Witnesses said the women left the scene, running west on Grand, despite bleeding wounds. Their damaged auto was impounded by officers.

Administration studies possible tax reductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carter administration officials are considering tax reductions of $17 billion to $20 billion for 1979, with about one-third of the savings for business and two-thirds for individuals, administration sources said today.

One said reports that the reductions might be greater sounds "very odd." However the sources didn't rule out that the figures could be higher when final decisions are made.

The New York Times said in a story today that the figures could reach $22 billion, with the additional money intended as a spur to lagging business investment.

President Carter planned to meet with his economic advisers later today to discuss the tax reductions and other changes that will be part of the tax reform package he will send to Congress in a few weeks.

However, sources cautioned that final decisions still aren't made, and probably won't be for several weeks yet.

It was previously known that the administration is thinking of total tax reductions in the $17 billion-$20 billion range.

About one-third of the reductions would be for business, through such measures as lower corporate taxes and partial elimination of the double tax on corporate dividends.

The other two-thirds would be for individuals through lower withholding taxes. Most taxpayers with incomes up to $100,000 would receive some reduction.

One administration official pointed out that the tax reduction in the first year would grow in subsequent years because taxable income would also rise, if for no other reason than the effects of inflation. Some programs, such as the elimination of the double-tax on dividends also would be phased in over several years.

The $17 billion reduction in 1979, for example, would increase another $13 billion to $30 billion in 1980, and another $10 billion to a total of $40 billion in fiscal 1981.

Snow, rain over much of nation

By The Associated Press

Snow fell on the western and central portions of Montana and northern Wyoming today, while rain fell from eastern Colorado and the Plains through central Texas and the lower Mississippi Valley.

Occasional showers fell on Florida, as well as the eastern end of the Great Lakes. Showers also continued in Maine.

Travel advisories continued over much of Montana and all but the northwestern portion of Wyoming. A heavy snow watch was issued for the Rockies of northern Colorado.

Skies were clear over much of the nation, and most temperatures were a little cooler than seasonable. It was mild or warm only over the southern third of the nation.

The national forecast called for sunny skies over the East — except in Maine, where showers were expected to linger.

Fair weather was expected to prevail over the plateau region and the Pacific Coast states.

Snow was forecast to end in Montana but spread into southern Wyoming and the northern Colorado Rockies.

Scattered showers were expected over the southern Plains, the mid Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes area.

Surviving twin of separation now 'critical'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ferra Hope, the baby girl who survived surgical separation from a twin sister who died, was reported in extremely critical condition Monday.

The child, who doctors have said makes medical history each hour she lives, took a turn for the worse during the weekend when she developed pneumonia and kidney problems.

Ferra Hope, born Sept. 14., has been in the surgical intensive care unit at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences.

She was separated from her conjoined twin sister during a five-hour operation Oct. 1. The sister died during the surgery.

The names of the parents have been withheld.

The baby is the first child to live more than six hours after an operation to separate twins born with one torso and a conjoined heart.

The condition is called thoracopagus and only 25 other cases have been recorded.

Republicans open annual convention

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (AP) — The country's Republican governors opened their annual convention today by reviving an old Democratic battle cry — "States' Rights" and less Washington in government.

"We meet at a time when states' rights are seriously questioned at the national level," Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, said as he opened the meeting.

"Every bill that is introduced in the Congress, and practically every bill that is supported by the current administration seeks to take away additional rights from the states," he said.

"If there is hope ahead for sanity in government, it lies with the governors, and with the individual states; and not with the Congress, and certainly, under current circumstances, not with the White House," he said.

Republicans have suffered a losing record in state elections recently, and the theme of this meeting is to look for what has been done wrong.

The conference, which gets down to formal business today amid the colorful fall foliage setting of New Hampshire's White Mountains, is dedicated almost solely to the nuts and bolts of politics and looking toward a comeback next year.

A flamboyant beauty

RUTH ELDER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ruth Elder, a flamboyant beauty who gained world fame 50 years ago after a failed attempt to become the first woman to fly the Atlantic, is dead at 73.

She died quietly in her sleep Sunday at the home she shared with her husband of 21 years, Ralph P. King.

In the half-century that followed the flight that began at Roosevelt Field in New York Oct. 11, 1927, Miss Elder made movies, met a president, hobnobbed with royalty, married six times, made a lot of money — and spent it all. She was called the "Miss America of Aviation."

"She was a beautiful person, a real woman," said King, 79. "I tried to wake her, but she was dead."

King said his wife had been suffering from emphysema for several years and complications of a broken hip. They lived in an apartment in downtown San Francisco for the last six years.

It was nearly five months after Charles A. Lindbergh made the first solo flight across the Atlantic that Miss Elder and copilot-navigator George Haldeman took off eastward in a single engine Stinson dubbed "American Girl."

The papers that morning remarked on the fancy figure the 23-year-old lady pilot cut in her flight suit over checked golf knickers, checked stockings and two-tone shoes.

As the world waited, the frail aircraft droned on toward Paris. They had flown 2,625 miles in 36 hours when an oil line cracked near the Azores.

Information from King, a family friend and published news stories described events that followed.

The aircraft had been without oil pressure for several minutes when a joyful vision appeared on the sea beneath them. Miss Elder dropped a message on its deck, asking assistance. The captain turned the ship toward nearest land, then had a message painted on deck.

It said the nearest land was 350 miles away at Cape Finistere off the coast of Spain. Too far. They ditched and were rescued by the ship, which docked at Lisbon, Portugal.

For Miss Elder, it was instant stardom. She was graciously welcomed by European royalty. She went on tour and made two silent movies with Richard Dix and Hoot Gibson. She had lunch with President Calvin Coolidge. Her bank account stood at $250,000.

"The money slipped through my fingers and soon there was nothing," she said in an interview years later.

En route, she acquired six husbands, including New York socialite Walter Camp Jr. She divorced them all — including six-times married Ralph King, her husband when she died.

Said King, "We were married about three years when she divorced me. One day she rang me. She says, 'Daddy, are you married again?' I says no, and she says, 'Can I come home?' I says yeah, and there it was. We got married again. A real love story."

King said his wife's remains will be cremated, then, in accordance with her wishes, following his death their ashes will be scattered over the sea from an airplane.

Military divides on canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee resumed hearings on the Panama Canal treaty today with two former top military officers endorsing the agreement and a third condemning it.

Retired Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, onetime chief of naval operations, told the panel they had no concern about the future security of the canal under the agreements.

Increasing controversy has been generated in recent weeks over apparent differences between U.S. and Panamanian views of the pact — specifically whether it would allow the United States the right to use military forces to defend the canal's neutrality after it is turned over to Panama in the year 2000.

Taylor told the committee that as he understood the treaty, "We shall have the right to make our own unilateral judgment on matters of compliance with these criteria of neutrality and may act independintly if necessary to enforce them."

Zumwalt agreed, saying the treaty is an "important step" toward assuring that the United States will have the use of the canal in a crisis.

But retired Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, an outspoken opponent of the treaty, cited statements by Panamanian officials to the effect that the United States, under the treaty, would not have a right to intervene militarily to protect the canal after 2000.

Administration spokesmen have claimed the opposite, saying the treaty in no way limits U.S. freedom of action to protect the waterway.

Moorer, who also is a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs, said the conflicts in U.S. and Panamanian interpretations of the treaty "should be cleared up without delay."

Meanwhile, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said he believes the United States should reopen negotiations with Panama to clarify the U.S. defense rights, and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, suggested that members of the Senate panel visit Panama themselves before making a decision on the pact.

"I think we should sit down and renegotiate, especially the defense responsibility," Goldwater said in a taped interview telecast today on the "CBS Morning News." Although usually conservative on military questions, Goldwater until now has been among senators tending to favor the treaty.

Administration spokesmen have said the treaty does not limit any U.S. action, but Panamanian officials insist the treaty does not provide for intervention by the United States.

Church said in another broadcast interview that members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should visit the canal to get first-hand view of its defenses.

Two CIM inmates stabbed

Two California Institution for Men inmates were admitted to the prison hospital this morning with stab wounds after they were allegedly attacked by other inmates in the Reception Center Central in two separate incidents Saturday.

CIM authorities reported that both victims, identified as Robert Phillip Brown, 18, and Roy Aguilara Billalba, 26, both of Los Angeles, had arrived at the institution's reception center on the same bus Friday.

Brown, authorities said, was watching a movie about 8:45 a.m. Saturday when he was suddenly attacked in the darkness. Guards turned on the lights to find Brown covered with blood. He suffered a slash of the neck in the incident. Guards said they found a prison-made knife on the floor near where the victim was stabbed. Brown was reported in good condition at the prison hospital. The victim was serving concurrent life terms for first and second degree murder.

The second incident about 11:10 a.m. Saturday left Billalba in "stable" condition with multiple knife wounds of the chest, shoulders and throat.

Authorities said Billalba, serving terms for burglary charges after his probation had been revoked, apparently was attacked in the dayroom of Sycamore Hall in the Reception Center Central. Guards reported finding four prison-made knives or shanks in the dayroom.

Authorities said that while the two inmates had arrived on the same bus together Friday, it was not believed the attacks were related. Prison investigators and Chino police are continuing the investigation. Several inmates are scheduled to be questioned by officers this morning.

New Orleans waterfront closed down by strike

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The entire waterfront of the nation's No. 2 port was shut down today as longshoremen continued a general strike in defiance of union leaders' insistence that they go along with a national strike aimed only at containerized cargo.

Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL-CIO, had no immediate response to a third refusal by New Orleans workers to limit their strike to container vessels.

The ILA called a strike of container ships on Oct. 1, when work contracts expired, but the New Orleans workers called a general strike.

The longshoremen said they felt a limited strike would divide the union and help only workers in heavily containerized ports in the Northeast.

Sixty per cent of New York's cargo is containerized, but the figure is 25 per cent for New Orleans, which handles huge amounts of bulk materials and hand-loaded cargo.

Officials of the port, New Orleans' largest industry, have estimated the strike's cost to the local economy at $2 million per day.

A federal mediator has been meeting with the ILA and representatives of the shippers in Washington. Meetings were recessed on Thursday.

New Orleans longshoremen reaffirmed their wildcat action Saturday in a secret-ballot referendum, by a vote of 804 to 519. Fewer than half of the 3,000 eligible members voted.

"When other ports see what we did here, they will call for a general strike," predicted Norris Plaisance, a member of Local 1418's central committee.

$11.7 million

Labor union insurance funds feared lost because of misuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor unions in eight states may lose several million dollars as the result of dealings by a California insurance man, according to testimony before a Senate subcommittee.

Testimony scheduled for today shows that as much as $11.7 million in insurance premiums may have been misused between 1973 and 1976 by Joseph Hauser, convicted in March of trying to bribe California union officials in exchange for their health insurance business.

In opening testimony before a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee, investigator W. Donald Gray said some funds were diverted to insurance agencies and other businesses owned by relatives or associates of labor union officials, who in turn helped steer business to Hauser.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said that as many as 20,000 union members could lose both their insurance coverage and premiums paid on their policies.

Gray said that some $5.8 million from premiums was "placed in investments which were at best questionable and at worst worthless and possibly fraudulent."

Among the unions involved in the complex scheme was the Teamsters' Central States Health and Welfare Fund, which may lose as much as $7 million in premiums paid over a period of three months.

The congressional investigation disclosed that of $39 million in premiums from union members collected by firms under Hauser's control, $13 million is unaccounted for.

The firms wrote various kinds of insurance for 20 labor union trust funds in Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Federal funds in Lance bank

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Budget Director Bert Lance says he had nothing to do with the deposit of more than $1 million in federal funds in the National Bank of Georgia, in which he is a major stockholder. A federal official backs him up.

"I know nothing about it," Lance said Sunday. "I didn't have anything to do with the placement of any federal funds whatsoever. That was not in my purview."

The former director of the Office of Management and Budget was reacting to a story published in Newsday, a Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, which said that as of March 31 the bank held $1,366,000 in federal funds in "savings accounts," much of it deposited after Lance became OMB director in January.

The newspaper also said all other national banks in Georgia had a total of $39,000 in federal funds in similar accounts.

On Sunday, the clerk of the U.S. District Court in northern Georgia, Ben Carter, said most of the $1 million in Lance's bank was deposited by individual trustees appointed in federal bankruptcy cases.

He said the NBG was one of "20 or 30 banks in the state" approved to receive such deposits and that the choice of which of those banks to use was "at the discretion of the trustees."

Carter also said all but about $43,000 of the federal money in the NBG was in the form of federal certificates of deposit and checking accounts, not in savings accounts.

Carter said he did not know if the approximately $1 million in bankruptcy funds was an unusually large amount for deposit in one Georgia bank.

Source of Hughes drugs sought

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal grand jury in Las Vegas, Nev., will be used by investigators to try to discover how the late Howard Hughes was supplied with drugs, The New York Times said today.

The investigation is aimed at the dozen or so closest aides of Hughes and his doctors and seeks to determine whether the drugs were obtained illegally, the newspaper said in a story under a San Francisco dateline.

The multimillionaire industrialist was known to be a user of Valium, Emperin No. 4 and codeine, the Times said. It said a source revealed that investigators had reached a point in their inquiries where subpoena power was needed to get further information.

To reduce prison rolls and welfare doles

'Shock parole' aims at keeping offenders from following crime

EDITOR'S NOTE: First-time felons get a break in Ohio. So do the state's prison system and taxpayers. It's a shortcut to freedom aimed at keeping the offenders from following the ways of seasoned criminals and reducing prison rolls and welfare doles.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Many states try to grapple with crime through tougher sentences and longer prison terms. In Ohio, they work on the theory that a short dose of prison life often is a better deterent than a long stay behind bars.

That's the rationale behind the state's "shock parole" and "shock probation," aimed at jolting felony prisoners into socially acceptable behavior.

"By early release, the prisoner avoids the typical contamination by seasoned criminals and gets out before he becomes part of the inmate subculture," says John W. Shoemaker, chief of the Ohio Adult Parole Authority. "Prolonged imprisonment, we are informed by criminologists, does not reform."

Shock probation allows a felony prisoner to apply to the courts for release within 130 days, and since it became law in 1965, about 7,000 convicts have been freed under it. Shoemaker says about 15 percent are returned to prison for new crimes or parole violations.

Shock parole, enacted in 1974, allows release of "non-dangerous" first-time felons after six months' confinement. About 1,600 inmates have been freed on shock parole and 180 returned to prison. Inmates who have not served time for a previous felony are eligible.

Ohio State Rep. Alan E. Norris, a critic, believes there's a place for shock parole but contends it's been used too freely in the past, as a routine rather than extraordinary measure.

Social policy apart, the shock treatment has saved the state a bundle, both in keeping a lid on prison populations and in prisons that didn't have to be built.

Shoemaker says it costs at least $30,000 a cell to build a prison and $5,000 a year to keep a person confined.

"If his family is on welfare, add another $2,500 per year," he says. "So, locking up the 8,600 felons released under shock treatment for an additional year would have cost taxpayers an astronomical $299 million.

The first criterion for shock treatment is the length of a sentence. Ohio law fixes degrees of felony offenses with minimum and maximum sentences for each degree.

Except for those doing time for a first degree felongy, such as murder or rape, which carries a minimum sentence of four years, any inmate is eligible.

Norris says shock parole was enacted on the grounds that state oversight was needed because some judges were denying early release to deserving offenders.

Carlos Aleman Jr. was among the early beneficiaries of shock parole. He was released on Oct. 15, 1974, shortly after the board geared up to handle the new program and after a court decision that it was retroactive.

Aleman was sentenced to a 50-to 100-year term for attempting to sell more than $250,000 worth of heroin in Cleveland. His release on shock parole after 18 months provoked an outcry over the "shock concept."

The uproar faded after the parole authority acted in 1975 to tighten shock eligibility. In its infancy, the program excluded only those convicted of murder, but that was broadened to include other felonies and serious drug offenses.

Aleman was arrested again last May in Chicago, accused of pushing heroin. His two-year parole expired in October 1976, but Ohio officials lost track of him when his jurisdiction was transferred to Puerto Rico. He never was officially "released" from parole.

"The way we handled that was a mistake," says a spokesman for the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction. "We blew it and we should just have admitted it."

Federal funds in Lance bank

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Budget Director Bert Lance says he had nothing to do with the deposit of more than $1 million in federal funds in the National Bank of Georgia, in which he is a major stockholder. A federal official backs him up.

"I know nothing about it," Lance said Sunday. "I didn't have anything to do with the placement of any federal funds whatsoever. That was not in my purview."

The former director of the Office of Management and Budget was reacting to a story published in Newsday, a Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, which said that as of March 31 the bank held $1,366,000 in federal funds in "savings accounts," much of it deposited after Lance became OMB director in January.

Mission program planned

Mrs. Robert K. Seidel will be in charge of the program for the dedication of the Fellowship of the Least Coin Offering when the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church of Pomona meets for its session at 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, in the church parlor.

The Fellowship of the Least Coin is made up of women of many countries who seek to express their oneness in the Christian mission by a common gift to a special project. Each woman prayerfully contributes each month the "least coin" of her country to an international fund administered by the Eastern Asia Christian Conference. The idea is that every woman will be able to contribute on the same level.

An Indian woman, member of the Pacific Fellowship team, proposed the plan and it found a ready response from women of the Philippines, Japan, Hong Kong, Korea, Thailand, India, Pakistan, the United States and some Latin American countries.

Mrs. Seidel holds the office of coordinator for Mission Interpretation for the Women's Association. Before her retirement, she was an elementary school teacher in the Pomona School District. She and her husband are active members of the church and reside in Claremont.

Members of Circle Four will be hostesses for the luncheon to be served at noon.

Joyce Brothers

Raising sons alone

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I'm a widow trying to raise two sons. I'm scared to death they'll turn out to be homosexual, or I'll fail in some other way. They're now 10 and 14, just the ages when they really need a man to understand them. My husband died some time ago but it's only lately that I've felt this concern. Maybe, it's all the current talk about gays. Do you have any advice? — R.P.

DEAR R.P.: I wouldn't spend too much time and energy worrying about the possibility of homosexuality. A child's sexual identity is usually well established by the age of 5. I assume your husband was alive when your youngest was 5. Many healthy children grow up in families where the father is always missing. While it is far from ideal, it's perfectly possible for a child to be well adjusted in a fatherless home.

As a widowed mother you have a difficult task because you must always be aware of the dangers of making your son a substitute for your husband. You may be tempted to make them intensely close companions and to lavish too much affection on them. But the situation has some natural safeguards. Usually, sons will pull away and build stronger ties with friends their own age.

You can help your sons by encouraging them to have close companions and by including their friends in family outings. You can also help by striving to build close relationships with friends your own age, so you're less apt to turn your sons into confidantes. Encourage your boys to accept invitations and to look on you always as mother, not a companion, or God forbid, a girlfriend.

A male relative or friend who can act as a surrogate father will be a great comfort and help.

And remember, no parent is perfect. Do the best you can and don't worry.

Election scheduled by group

The United Methodist Women of Claremont United Methodist Church will elect and install officers when the group meets at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday in the Round Building of the church.

Mrs. Peggy Skeen, district officer, will install the new officers. Mrs. Lydia Lenox will give devotions.

The program, "United Nations Today," will be presented by Dr. Esther Chu. She will answer questions about the UN.

Child care is available upon request by calling Mrs. Paula Lightfoot, 621-2103.

City of Hope meeting set this evening

Pomona International Chapter of the City of Hope for Lilly Moritz will meet tonight in the home of Mrs. Mickey Gallivan, 206 E. Lincoln Ave., Pomona.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "WHO MADE THE FIRST PHONOGRAPH?"
ANGIE OEHLER MARINETTE, WI
A. THE FIRST PRACTICAL PHONOGRAPH WAS INVENTED BY THOMAS A. EDISON IN 1877.
DICK ROGERS

© 1977 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

A new kind of entertainment was begun when Thomas A. Edison invented the phonograph in 1877.

It did not look at all like the record players of today.

It did not operate by means of electricity, and the record was a sheet of tin foil wrapped around a hollow tube, or cylinder. A hand crank made the record turn around and around.

To make the first recording of sound, Edison fastened a steel needle to the center of a small metal disc.

Next, he turned the crank of the cylinder, leaned closed to the disc, and shouted "Mary had a little lamb!"

When the sound waves of his voice struck the disc they made the needle vibrate. The vibrating needle scratched a wavy groove on the foil.

Edison then set the needle in the same groove and again turned the crank. As the needle traveled along the groove, he heard his new phonograph repeat the words he had shouted into it.

Insurance rates for hospitals dip

SACRAMENTO (BW) — First evidence that activities to reform the malpractice insurance crisis are taking effect was reported here by the California Hospital Association.

"Liability insurance rates for more than 420 California hospitals participating in the CHA group program will be reduced an average of 9 percent on the first $1 million of coverage," CHA president Paul D. Ward said.

The reduction was attributed to the effects of the 1975 Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act which the association supported during a special session on the 1975-76 crisis when huge rate increases in professional liability insurance precipitated work slowdowns by physicians.

CHA and the California Medical Association are continuing with major efforts to resolve the problems of medical injury which may lead to further reductions.

"We estimate the savings to hospitals in the CHA program in liability premiums in this first step, alone, will total about $10 million a year," Ward said.

"This is a good beginning in the face of increasing inflation and high costs for health care," Ward said, "but we hope that future efforts will bring even more significant savings for hospitals, doctors and patients."

Insurance rates for hospitals dip

SACRAMENTO (BW) — First evidence that activities to reform the malpractice insurance crisis are taking effect was reported here by the California Hospital Association.

"Liability insurance rates for more than 420 California hospitals participating in the CHA group program will be reduced an average of 9 percent on the first $1 million of coverage," CHA president Paul D. Ward said.

The reduction was attributed to the effects of the 1975 Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act which the association supported during a special session on the 1975-76 crisis when huge rate increases in professional liability insurance precipitated work slowdowns by physicians.

CHA and the California Medical Association are continuing with major efforts to resolve the problems of medical injury which may lead to further reductions.

"We estimate the savings to hospitals in the CHA program in liability premiums in this first step, alone, will total about $10 million a year," Ward said.

"This is a good beginning in the face of increasing inflation and high costs for health care," Ward said, "but we hope that future efforts will bring even more significant savings for hospitals, doctors and patients."

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, beset by interest rate fears on a semiholiday, headed lower Monday in some of the slowest trading of the year.

The dull trading pace was attributed to the Columbus Day holiday. Many of the nation's banks and federal government offices were closed, but the stock and bond markets were open.

Some investors were driven to the sidelines by indications the Federal Reserve Board Friday had tightened credit again. Although the nation's money supply declined the past two weeks, it has grown at a rate higher than Fed goals.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 1.73 points Friday, was off 3.11 points to 837.24 shortly before noon EDT. The closely watched average lost 6.76 points overall last week.

Breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the course of the market. Of the 1,505 issues crossing the tape, 578 declined, 417 advanced and 510 remained unchanged.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 4,700,000 shares, down from the 7,450,000 traded during the comparable period Friday.

Chris-Craft, which lost a point Friday, was the most active NYSE issue, off another ⅝ to 8. Bangor Punta will pay $49 million in cash and notes for Chris-Craft's interest in Piper Aircraft. The agreement ended eight years of ligitation. Bangor Punta stock was unchanged.

Savin Busines Machines, which has dropped 19 points the past two weeks, was the second most active issue, off ⅜ to 25. The stock has been clobbered because of fears that Ricoh, its Japanese supplier of copiers, will become a competitor.

Vetco Inc. was the third most active issue, off ⅛ to 21¼.

Gold mining issues were strong as bullion prices soared more than nearly $3 an ounce at the early London fixing. Dome Mines was ahead 1¼, Campbell Red Lake 1⅛, ASA Ltd. ½ and Homestake Mining ¼.

Prices were mixed in slow trading of American Stock Exchange issues.

TWA seeking lower fares

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Trans World Airlines (TWA) is filing for reduced advance purchase excursion "Apex" fares from all U.S. cities to all European cities.

Reductions of up to $60 from current Apex fare levels would become effective Nov. 1, subject to approval by the U.S. and appropriate foreign governments.

For example, passengers traveling from Los Angeles or San Francisco to Paris at the proposed lower Apex fare of $491 will save $45 from the present fare of $536; from Chicago to Athens the proposed fare is $536 for a savings of $42 and from New York to Madrid/Malaga the $295 fare provides a $60 reduction from the current fare of $355.

The current round-trip fare to London will be reduced by $60 to $440 from Los Angeles and San Francisco, to $290 from New York, to $285 from Boston, to $313 from Philadelphia and $353 from Chicago.

Funeral societies cut cost of dying

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A funeral isn't something you can take care of when you need it, and your family isn't likely to drive a very good bargain at such a time either.

Because of this, many consumers have joined funeral societies, nonprofit organizations that let you decide ahead of time what you want and how much you're going to spend. Such groups charge a nominal membership fee and offer dignified but low-cost funerals.

The Los Angeles Funeral Society, the state's largest with an estimated 50,000 members, has contracts with seven mortuaries around the LA area. LAFS members are urged to file their instructions in writing with the mortuary of their choice so that no extra costs will be incurred when the time comes.

"A bereaved family is under much less stress if the wishes have been written down ahead of time because there isn't the psychological pressure to have a fancy funeral," says Marie Fraser, executive secretary of the LAFS. "Having the wishes on file also saves the mortuary staff a lot of time locating relatives and conferring with the family."

Although LAFS members can choose whatever kind of funeral they want, 75 per cent decide on immediate cremation with the ashes scattered at sea. The cost is about $250, and that is usually covered by Social Security death benefits. If you want a formal burial, you must make your own arrangements with a cemetery — the LAFS does not contract with them.

"We favor complete freedom of choice," says Mrs. Fraser. "Some of our members have the traditional funeral service with burial, some have the funeral with immediate cremation and some have their own services at home. It's all up to them."

LAFS members receive membership cards for their wallet on which they list the name, address and phone number of their next of kin and the mortuary where their instructions are on file. In the event of a sudden death, the membership card helps authorities in following the wishes of the deceased.

Further information is available from The Los Angeles Funeral Society, P.O. Box 9456, North Hollywood, Calif., 91609. Their phone number is (213) 877-1474. In Northern California, contact The Bay Area Funeral Society, P.O. Box 264, Berkeley, 94701, (415) 841-6653. There are about ten funeral societies in California and you can obtain the address of one near you from the two listed above or from the Continental Association of Memorial and Funeral Societies, 1828 L St., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036.

Landscape of people: expert sees clue in TV stereotyping

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Joseph Turow, assistant professor of communications at Purdue University, sees something in common between television programs and the paint-by-number sets. And it's not just color.

Turow, a researcher in the Department of Communication, is interested in the reasons for social and physical stereotyping by the television industry. He recently spent two months in California interviewing writers, directors, agents, casting directors and producers to learn how they select actors for "bit" or small parts.

Turow calls the constant flow of characters seen on the tube a "landscape of people." It is a fairly predictable landscape, he says, one in which some groups — notably women and miility," which he explains as the professionals' "perception of what Middle America thinks a person in a particular occupation normally looks like."

For example, casting directors believe an actor would readily be accepted as a judge if the part were played by a white-haired, middle-aged man. They are hesitant to select an untypical-looking person for a part since they contend it distracts viewers from the story, Turow says.

The second guideline is visual balance, or "how characters look next to one another." The physical make-up of a person — short, heavy, bald, etc. — can affect whether he or she will be cast next to another actor. For example, in "Starsky and Hutch," a man who is better-looking than the two policemen would probably not be selected for a guest part since he would detract attention from the two stars.

Shows also have certain "looks" which those in charge of casting try to maintain. For example, "Charlie's Angels" is a "beautiful people" show while "Baretta" is a "street people, grungy-type" show, says Turow.

"Agents, casting directors and other persons involved tend to settle into certain comfortable casting 'cliches' — unless they're influenced by outside pressures," says Turow.

Many of those interviewed said they were responding to pressures to increase the number of women, old persons, Mexican-Americans and Orientals seen on television, he says. (Blacks, they contend, are doing fine.) However, he adds, it was stressed that selection of such persons must still be done according to "credibility."

What effect does such stereotyped casting have on children who watch TV?

Turow believes it may give young persons incorrect ideas about what the world is like and what possibilities they have in life. He doesn't believe TV stereotyping will ever be eliminated, though.

"Human beings use simplified ideas about the world to help them go about their daily affairs comfortably and efficiently," he says. "Mass-media organizations do the same thing. In spite of that, people concerned about stereotyping should keep challenging the patterns they see on their home screen so that those in charge of casting will have to keep making the 'landscape of people' richer and more varied.

"And, most important, we have to teach our children that when they watch TV they are not seeing a mirror of life."

Earnings up for airline

LOS ANGELES (BW) — National Airlines reported August earnings of $807,000, equal to 9 cents a share.

These earnings compare with 1976 results of $256,000, or 3 cents, E.F. Dolansky, president, said.

Operating revenues for August rose 21 percent over the year earlier month to $46 million. This improvement was achieved primarily from increased traffic in both the domestic and international markets, Dolansky noted.

Revenue passenger miles increased 17 percent to 570 million, on a capacity increase of 15 percent to 1.1 billion available seat miles, resulting in a passenger load factor of 50 percent. The nonstop Paris-Miami flights inaugurated in June, and London-Miami traffic growth contributed to this improvement.

Operations for July and August — first two months of the fiscal year — produced net income of $1.7 million, or 20 cents a share, compared with $961,000, or 11 cents, in the like 1976 period.

Revenues increased to $94 million this year from $78 million in July and August 1976.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, beset by interest rate fears on a semiholiday, headed lower Monday in some of the slowest trading of the year.

The dull trading pace was attributed to the Columbus Day holiday. Many of the nation's banks and federal government offices were closed, but the stock and bond markets were open.

Some investors were driven to the sidelines by indications the Federal Reserve Board Friday had tightened credit again. Although the nation's money supply declined the past two weeks, it has grown at a rate higher than Fed goals.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 1.73 points Friday, was off 3.11 points to 837.24 shortly before noon EDT. The closely watched average lost 6.76 points overall last week.

Breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the course of the market. Of the 1,505 issues crossing the tape, 578 declined, 417 advanced and 510 remained unchanged.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 4,700,000 shares, down from the 7,450,000 traded during the comparable period Friday.

Chris-Craft, which lost a point Friday, was the most active NYSE issue, off another ⅝ to 8. Bangor Punta will pay $49 million in cash and notes for Chris-Craft's interest in Piper Aircraft. The agreement ended eight years of ligitation. Bangor Punta stock was unchanged.

Savin Busines Machines, which has dropped 19 points the past two weeks, was the second most active issue, off ⅜ to 25. The stock has been clobbered because of fears that Ricoh, its Japanese supplier of copiers, will become a competitor.

Vetco Inc. was the third most active issue, off ⅛ to 21¼.

Gold mining issues were strong as bullion prices soared more than nearly $3 an ounce at the early London fixing. Dome Mines was ahead 1¼, Campbell Red Lake 1⅛, ASA Ltd. ½ and Homestake Mining ¼.

Prices were mixed in slow trading of American Stock Exchange issues.

TWA seeking lower fares

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Trans World Airlines (TWA) is filing for reduced advance purchase excursion "Apex" fares from all U.S. cities to all European cities.

Reductions of up to $60 from current Apex fare levels would become effective Nov. 1, subject to approval by the U.S. and appropriate foreign governments.

For example, passengers traveling from Los Angeles or San Francisco to Paris at the proposed lower Apex fare of $491 will save $45 from the present fare of $536; from Chicago to Athens the proposed fare is $536 for a savings of $42 and from New York to Madrid/Malaga the $295 fare provides a $60 reduction from the current fare of $355.

The current round-trip fare to London will be reduced by $60 to $440 from Los Angeles and San Francisco, to $290 from New York, to $285 from Boston, to $313 from Philadelphia and $353 from Chicago.

Funeral societies cut cost of dying

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A funeral isn't something you can take care of when you need it, and your family isn't likely to drive a very good bargain at such a time either.

Because of this, many consumers have joined funeral societies, nonprofit organizations that let you decide ahead of time what you want and how much you're going to spend. Such groups charge a nominal membership fee and offer dignified but low-cost funerals.

The Los Angeles Funeral Society, the state's largest with an estimated 50,000 members, has contracts with seven mortuaries around the LA area. LAFS members are urged to file their instructions in writing with the mortuary of their choice so that no extra costs will be incurred when the time comes.

"A bereaved family is under much less stress if the wishes have been written down ahead of time because there isn't the psychological pressure to have a fancy funeral," says Marie Fraser, executive secretary of the LAFS. "Having the wishes on file also saves the mortuary staff a lot of time locating relatives and conferring with the family."

Although LAFS members can choose whatever kind of funeral they want, 75 per cent decide on immediate cremation with the ashes scattered at sea. The cost is about $250, and that is usually covered by Social Security death benefits. If you want a formal burial, you must make your own arrangements with a cemetery — the LAFS does not contract with them.

"We favor complete freedom of choice," says Mrs. Fraser. "Some of our members have the traditional funeral service with burial, some have the funeral with immediate cremation and some have their own services at home. It's all up to them."

LAFS members receive membership cards for their wallet on which they list the name, address and phone number of their next of kin and the mortuary where their instructions are on file. In the event of a sudden death, the membership card helps authorities in following the wishes of the deceased.

Further information is available from The Los Angeles Funeral Society, P.O. Box 9456, North Hollywood, Calif., 91609. Their phone number is (213) 877-1474. In Northern California, contact The Bay Area Funeral Society, P.O. Box 264, Berkeley, 94701, (415) 841-6653. There are about ten funeral societies in California and you can obtain the address of one near you from the two listed above or from the Continental Association of Memorial and Funeral Societies, 1828 L St., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036.

Landscape of people: expert sees clue in TV stereotyping

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Joseph Turow, assistant professor of communications at Purdue University, sees something in common between television programs and the paint-by-number sets. And it's not just color.

Turow, a researcher in the Department of Communication, is interested in the reasons for social and physical stereotyping by the television industry. He recently spent two months in California interviewing writers, directors, agents, casting directors and producers to learn how they select actors for "bit" or small parts.

Turow calls the constant flow of characters seen on the tube a "landscape of people." It is a fairly predictable landscape, he says, one in which some groups — notably women and miility," which he explains as the professionals' "perception of what Middle America thinks a person in a particular occupation normally looks like."

For example, casting directors believe an actor would readily be accepted as a judge if the part were played by a white-haired, middle-aged man. They are hesitant to select an untypical-looking person for a part since they contend it distracts viewers from the story, Turow says.

The second guideline is visual balance, or "how characters look next to one another." The physical make-up of a person — short, heavy, bald, etc. — can affect whether he or she will be cast next to another actor. For example, in "Starsky and Hutch," a man who is better-looking than the two policemen would probably not be selected for a guest part since he would detract attention from the two stars.

Shows also have certain "looks" which those in charge of casting try to maintain. For example, "Charlie's Angels" is a "beautiful people" show while "Baretta" is a "street people, grungy-type" show, says Turow.

"Agents, casting directors and other persons involved tend to settle into certain comfortable casting 'cliches' — unless they're influenced by outside pressures," says Turow.

Many of those interviewed said they were responding to pressures to increase the number of women, old persons, Mexican-Americans and Orientals seen on television, he says. (Blacks, they contend, are doing fine.) However, he adds, it was stressed that selection of such persons must still be done according to "credibility."

What effect does such stereotyped casting have on children who watch TV?

Turow believes it may give young persons incorrect ideas about what the world is like and what possibilities they have in life. He doesn't believe TV stereotyping will ever be eliminated, though.

"Human beings use simplified ideas about the world to help them go about their daily affairs comfortably and efficiently," he says. "Mass-media organizations do the same thing. In spite of that, people concerned about stereotyping should keep challenging the patterns they see on their home screen so that those in charge of casting will have to keep making the 'landscape of people' richer and more varied.

"And, most important, we have to teach our children that when they watch TV they are not seeing a mirror of life."

Earnings up for airline

LOS ANGELES (BW) — National Airlines reported August earnings of $807,000, equal to 9 cents a share.

These earnings compare with 1976 results of $256,000, or 3 cents, E.F. Dolansky, president, said.

Operating revenues for August rose 21 percent over the year earlier month to $46 million. This improvement was achieved primarily from increased traffic in both the domestic and international markets, Dolansky noted.

Revenue passenger miles increased 17 percent to 570 million, on a capacity increase of 15 percent to 1.1 billion available seat miles, resulting in a passenger load factor of 50 percent. The nonstop Paris-Miami flights inaugurated in June, and London-Miami traffic growth contributed to this improvement.

Operations for July and August — first two months of the fiscal year — produced net income of $1.7 million, or 20 cents a share, compared with $961,000, or 11 cents, in the like 1976 period.

Revenues increased to $94 million this year from $78 million in July and August 1976.

Science breakthrough to improve predictions

Hurricane—nature's safety valve is destructive to man

EDITOR'S NOTE: The hurricane is a safety valve of nature, though that's small consolation for people regularly caught up in its path. But midway through this year's hurricane season, scientists have gathered important new information about the anatomy of the storms which should lead to better forecasting.

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — It can start as innocuously as a fluctuation in the easterly flow of winds over Africa. But under the right conditions, the clash of the air between the tropic and temperate zones can turn it into one of the most powerful forces in Nature.

The hurricane.

Known as the typhoon in the Pacific Ocean and the cyclone in the Indian Ocean, these largest of atmospheric disturbances can affect an area of 200,000 square miles and create more energy than is generated in the United States during several decades.

A hurricane can move 3,600 million tons of air up to 200 miles an hour, churn up 25-foot waves in the ocean and dump torrential rains that bring flooding and death.

Yet for all of the hurricane's havoc, scientists say it is a natural safety valve that balances tremendous atmospheric forces.

"We don't have some evil force manifesting itself out there as a hurricane," says Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami. "It releases the heat built up in the tropics."

Named for the Mayan storm god Hunraken, the Atlantic member of the cyclone family is a fact of life along the Eastern and Gulf coasts of North America from June through November.

"We recognize what conditions are necessary to form hurricanes," says Dr. Robert Sheets, chief of Hurricane Group for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. "But sometimes no storm will form under the same conditions that have created a big storm."

Sheets and his group have started taking a more detailed look at the big storms this year with the help of special computer-equipped Navy Orion and Air Force C-130 aircraft.

Armed with $30 million of the latest developments in radar and computers, the NOAA group, called Project Stormfury, flew three missions into Hurricane Anita last month, collecting data on the interaction of temperature, winds and clouds as the storm grew.

Sheets says Stormfury's flights through Anita's 172 mph winds provided as much information as was collected in five years using old methods.

With separate radar units in the nose, belly and tail of the aircraft, scientists took three-dimensional photos of the storm. Particle counters on the wings used lasers to analyze and count minute water droplets and ice crystals in the clouds. All the information was monitored by a new computer able to assimilate and analyze more data than previous equipment.

"Our immediate objective is to understand the interactions better to help us with our forecasting," he says. "We now have an accepted 100-mile error in predicting where a storm will hit. If we can narrow that, we can save money and lives.

"The same applies to intensity. If we are better able to predict the strength of the storm, some of the expensive precautions for big storms can be avoided."

"We seem to go in phases," says Sheets. "In the 1940s and 50s, hurricanes occurred mainly in the Florida area. In the late 50s and 60s they shifted to the East Coast. Now they seem to be in the Gulf."

Wherever they are, Dr. Frank is tracking them.

"About 36.5 million people live along coastal areas from Texas to Maine, and 28 million of them have no idea of the awesome power of a hurricane," he says.

Frank, a 46-year-old native of Kansas, tornado country, learned meterology in the Air Force then got a doctorate at Florida State University. He joined the Hurricane Center in 1959 and became director in 1974.

Frank supervises a staff of 75, which forecasts Florida's weather year round, watches hurricanes for the United States, Caribbean and South America and conducts research.

During the hurricane season, the center's six hurricane forecasters work day and night shifts collecting data on tropical disturbances and informing the public.

The center's hurricane room looks like a war room. A map of the Caribbean and Atlantic, marked with latitude and longitude hatch marks, covers one wall. Red tags tracing the hurricane are moved around the map like warships in battle.

The other walls are covered with maps detailing wind speed, temperature and pressure culled from the ground stations and balloon soundings from 120 points in the United States and the Caribbean.

Two monitors above the room show the progress of storms in the South Atlantic and Caribbean via photos beamed from three satellites orbiting 22,000 miles above Brazil. The photos are received by a Virginia tracking station and relayed to the center every six hours.

Meanwhile, a floor below, Project Stormfury scientists are working on ways to reduce storm damage. Using the data from their flights, Sheets and his colleagues hope to renew experiments in hurricane modification.

"Cloud-seeding" experiments, using aircraft to spray clouds with silver iodide crystals have been performed since 1961, in an attempt to break up the storms.

Experiments conducted on Hurricane Debbie in 1969 have convinced some scientists that seeding clouds near the eye can create mini-storms that enlarge the center of the hurricane, breaking up the vicious vortex responsible for the high winds.

Sheets says data indicates the winds can be reduced from 15 to 30 percent.

"I've been studying these storms for 12 years," says Sheets. "They're interesting and intriguing. But now we're getting up to the point where the research in the next few years is going to be very exciting."

Child porno arrests made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first arrests under the state's new child pornography law were made by sheriff's deputies as they seized about 500 child pornographic films, officials said.

Sheriff's deputies said a 38-year-old Los Angeles woman was arrested Thursday along with four others as part of an alleged pornography ring. Deputies said the woman was a major distributor of child pornography.

Science breakthrough to improve predictions

Hurricane—nature's safety valve is destructive to man

EDITOR'S NOTE: The hurricane is a safety valve of nature, though that's small consolation for people regularly caught up in its path. But midway through this year's hurricane season, scientists have gathered important new information about the anatomy of the storms which should lead to better forecasting.

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — It can start as innocuously as a fluctuation in the easterly flow of winds over Africa. But under the right conditions, the clash of the air between the tropic and temperate zones can turn it into one of the most powerful forces in Nature.

The hurricane.

Known as the typhoon in the Pacific Ocean and the cyclone in the Indian Ocean, these largest of atmospheric disturbances can affect an area of 200,000 square miles and create more energy than is generated in the United States during several decades.

A hurricane can move 3,600 million tons of air up to 200 miles an hour, churn up 25-foot waves in the ocean and dump torrential rains that bring flooding and death.

Yet for all of the hurricane's havoc, scientists say it is a natural safety valve that balances tremendous atmospheric forces.

"We don't have some evil force manifesting itself out there as a hurricane," says Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami. "It releases the heat built up in the tropics."

Named for the Mayan storm god Hunraken, the Atlantic member of the cyclone family is a fact of life along the Eastern and Gulf coasts of North America from June through November.

"We recognize what conditions are necessary to form hurricanes," says Dr. Robert Sheets, chief of Hurricane Group for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. "But sometimes no storm will form under the same conditions that have created a big storm."

Sheets and his group have started taking a more detailed look at the big storms this year with the help of special computer-equipped Navy Orion and Air Force C-130 aircraft.

Armed with $30 million of the latest developments in radar and computers, the NOAA group, called Project Stormfury, flew three missions into Hurricane Anita last month, collecting data on the interaction of temperature, winds and clouds as the storm grew.

Sheets says Stormfury's flights through Anita's 172 mph winds provided as much information as was collected in five years using old methods.

With separate radar units in the nose, belly and tail of the aircraft, scientists took three-dimensional photos of the storm. Particle counters on the wings used lasers to analyze and count minute water droplets and ice crystals in the clouds. All the information was monitored by a new computer able to assimilate and analyze more data than previous equipment.

"Our immediate objective is to understand the interactions better to help us with our forecasting," he says. "We now have an accepted 100-mile error in predicting where a storm will hit. If we can narrow that, we can save money and lives.

"The same applies to intensity. If we are better able to predict the strength of the storm, some of the expensive precautions for big storms can be avoided."

"We seem to go in phases," says Sheets. "In the 1940s and 50s, hurricanes occurred mainly in the Florida area. In the late 50s and 60s they shifted to the East Coast. Now they seem to be in the Gulf."

Wherever they are, Dr. Frank is tracking them.

"About 36.5 million people live along coastal areas from Texas to Maine, and 28 million of them have no idea of the awesome power of a hurricane," he says.

Frank, a 46-year-old native of Kansas, tornado country, learned meterology in the Air Force then got a doctorate at Florida State University. He joined the Hurricane Center in 1959 and became director in 1974.

Frank supervises a staff of 75, which forecasts Florida's weather year round, watches hurricanes for the United States, Caribbean and South America and conducts research.

During the hurricane season, the center's six hurricane forecasters work day and night shifts collecting data on tropical disturbances and informing the public.

The center's hurricane room looks like a war room. A map of the Caribbean and Atlantic, marked with latitude and longitude hatch marks, covers one wall. Red tags tracing the hurricane are moved around the map like warships in battle.

The other walls are covered with maps detailing wind speed, temperature and pressure culled from the ground stations and balloon soundings from 120 points in the United States and the Caribbean.

Two monitors above the room show the progress of storms in the South Atlantic and Caribbean via photos beamed from three satellites orbiting 22,000 miles above Brazil. The photos are received by a Virginia tracking station and relayed to the center every six hours.

Meanwhile, a floor below, Project Stormfury scientists are working on ways to reduce storm damage. Using the data from their flights, Sheets and his colleagues hope to renew experiments in hurricane modification.

"Cloud-seeding" experiments, using aircraft to spray clouds with silver iodide crystals have been performed since 1961, in an attempt to break up the storms.

Experiments conducted on Hurricane Debbie in 1969 have convinced some scientists that seeding clouds near the eye can create mini-storms that enlarge the center of the hurricane, breaking up the vicious vortex responsible for the high winds.

Sheets says data indicates the winds can be reduced from 15 to 30 percent.

"I've been studying these storms for 12 years," says Sheets. "They're interesting and intriguing. But now we're getting up to the point where the research in the next few years is going to be very exciting."

Child porno arrests made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first arrests under the state's new child pornography law were made by sheriff's deputies as they seized about 500 child pornographic films, officials said.

Sheriff's deputies said a 38-year-old Los Angeles woman was arrested Thursday along with four others as part of an alleged pornography ring. Deputies said the woman was a major distributor of child pornography.

Major automobile center envisioned in Montclair

PB Staff Writer

Montclair is moving commercial dreams again.

This time, it's a new Montclair Auto Center. This will serve as a catalyst to the West End city becoming the nucleus of commercial enterprise, according to city and business representatives.

The Montclair Chamber of Commerce will host a champagne mixer Wednesday from 4:30 to 7 p.m. in the University Mazda showroom to officially kickoff development of the auto center at Central Avenue and Holt Boulevard.

Attending will be new dealers George Follmer, Follmer Porsche-Audi-Subaru; O. D. Thomas, Pomona Dodge; Gary Sherman, Frank White Imports; present Montclair car dealers, and chamber, city and community officials.

The auto center concept came from a study of commercial parcels along Central Avenue. These were completed by the Municipal Services, Inc., of Pasadena for the City of Montclair.

Patric Barry, the study coordinator, recommended development of an auto mall at the old Valley Drive-In site. The city hired him last January as the consultant to put the auto center complex together.

Lauren Wasserman, city administrator, Jim Bookhout, chamber president, Dennis Silletto, chamber community development council chairman, and Barry then worked as a team on its development.

The center involves 26 acres at the northeast corner of Central and Holt. It extends north to Kingsley Street. The auto agencies will face on Central, with the city developing the northeast corner into a neighborhood park.

Frontage along Holt — presently occupied by a mobile home sales business — will ultimately generate related auto service companies.

Thomas will be the first — and largest — tenant with Dodge cars and trucks offered in the center by next February.

Sherman anticipates moving his Volvo agency there next August, but will keep his Fiat dealership in Pomona. Follmer will be the last with his Porsche-Audi and Subaru dealerships.

With the new and existing agencies, the auto center will provide a broad selection of vehicles: Pontiac, GMC trucks, Peugeot, Mazda, Mercedes-Benz, Honda, Porsche, Audi, Subaru, Dodge and Volvo.

Silletto, whose father, Jan, owns both the Mazda and University Lincoln-Mercury dealerships in Pomona, said future plans also include relocating the Lincoln-Mercury operation in the area.

The most common factor for the three relocations was the need for additional space.

Follmer, a former internationally famous race car driver, took over the Catron business last January and has moved the total Porsche-Audi sales from 17th place in the Los Angeles metropolitan area to seventh place.

"I don't see any disadvantages to the move or I wouldn't be looking at it," he said. "We're at a point that to better serve our customers we must have a better facility and space. I'm trying to bring my dealership to championship caliber."

Sherman has owned the Frank White Imports, a familiar name in the valley, since September, 1976. He has realized a 40 per cent sales volume increase, going from $1.5 million to $2.6 million.

"We're just plain cramped here. We can't handle the business. When someone pays $11,000 for a Volvo, he should get more than we're able to offer in terms of service and aesthetics," said the former Pasadena car dealer.

Sherman said the auto center "makes it easier for comparative shopping. People are more conscious about buying than they were 10 years ago.

"It will also be easier for each dealership to get parts because of the proximity of other dealerships. Related auto services will provide equipment and facilities not covered under our service contracts," he added.

Thomas, who anticipates an $8 million sales figure by the end of this year, predicted even greater business potential at the new auto center.

He built his dealership from $2 million gross sales annually from his takeover in 1968 and cites the increased traffic volume at Central and Holt and the proximity to escalating West End growth as major factors for larger sales.

The auto center concept was introduced in 1972 at Seaside in the Monterey Peninsula. It has since spread to communities throughout the world.

Barry described the Seaside project as a revitalization project of a blighted downtown area. It is now an extensively landscaped area that is a focal community and entertainment center and commercial hub.

"Seaside broke the ice about the fear of proximity to other dealerships," said Barry. "It increased servicing business and the number of qualified buyers."

Incorporating the park development with the auto center has the double purpose of providing a neighborhood recreation area and creating a buffer between the center and adjacent residents, said Wasserman.

The estimated $700,000 allocation to Montclair from the 1976 State Park and Recreation Bond Act will be used to acquire the four-acre site, he added. And the city anticipates using revenue sharing funds for park development.

Wasserman believes the center will increase property and sales taxes to the city, stimulate other Holt Boulevard development, clean up a blighted commercial site, and eliminate the problems experienced with a drive-in theater on the parcel.

"The drive-in was a real eyesore. We had constant problems of policing, traffic, maintenance, the caliber of movies shown, and legal battles over swap meets.

"Now we'll have a nice, modern development that fits in with our general plan. Police and fire protection will be simpler because of the business concentration into one area," said Wasserman.

He estimated an "easy" increase of $150,000 annually from sales tax revenues generated in the city.

Pomona chiropractor develops non-needle acupuncture machine

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A Pomona chiropractic doctor has developed a non-needle acupuncture machine in the hope of reducing health care costs.

Dr. Thomas W. Wing, who has practiced in Pomona since 1950, designed the Accu-o-Matic equipment which is now being marketed by a Pomona firm after many years of study of acupuncture.

"Not only can the use of the non-needle acupuncture machine reduce the cost of health care by making possible easier assessment of the patient's condition, it can greatly reduce the time required for treatment.

"In some cases, we've reduced the time for treatments from a year down to a week," reported Dr. Wing.

A major advantage of the machine, the Pomonan said, is that it can be used by a nurse or licensed technician, thus reducing further the cost of medical care.

While acupuncture with needles is painful and requires an exact pinpointing of the acupoints, the machine used by Dr. Wing does not demand such exact procedures.

The needle is replaced with a saline-dipped Q-Tip and the meridian acupoints need only be approximated.

Dr. Wing describes the meridians as expressways along which impulses travel to specific organs or parts of the body. The outside stimulation of these meridians at acupoints can be recorded through positive or negative readings on the machine.

The use of stimulation of the acupoints also causes a reaction in the related body part.

A fourth generation doctor, Dr. Wing has always been deeply interested in designing machines. He worked his way through Los Angeles Chiropractic College by repairing machines for other doctors or by designing machines and selling them to doctors at a reduced cost.

One of his early developments was the "beeper" now used by most doctors and many others to keep in radio contact with their offices or hospitals. He sold this invention to Lytton Industries.

Dr. Wing's father came to the United States in 1900 from China and practiced acupuncture in the Visalia and Hanford area for many years, treating patients who came by the trainload from Southern California.

Dr. Wing also practiced acupuncture until 1960, when California law prohibited the puncturing of the skin by chiropractic doctors.

"However, Dr. David Bressler, head of the acupuncture research project at UCLA School of Medicine, says the school now considers acupuncture a medical modality," reported Dr. Wing.

Traditional needle acupuncture has been practiced by the Chinese for over 5,000 years. The first Western glimpse of acupuncture occurred in the 17th century when monks returned from China to France and brought back a new method of treatment — with needles. They named it "acus" for needles and "pungo" for puncture.

While the Japanese have generally been credited with the first use of electricity in acupuncture, the first recorded instance of this new procedure is credited to Salandiere of France who applied small electric currents to needles inserted into the acupoints in the 1700s.

But the popularity of acupuncture faded.

As far as Dr. Wing knows, the first electronic machine invented in the United States was in 1925. It was named Nervistor, probably because it was used for "nerve tracing," a technique popular at that time.

It was not until former President Nixon visited China in 1972 that acupuncture became popular again in this country.

In 1972, the news of anesthesia by acupuncture in China sent shock waves through the United States," added Dr. Wing.

The chiropractor, who has offices in Riverside and Los Angeles also, spends a great deal of his time working with students in schools and demonstrating his machine before research groups. He has been working closely with UCLA and the University of Michigan.

The Accu-o-Matic machine is available only to licensed healing professionals, not the public. Seminars in the use of the equipment are taught by his daughter, Caroline, for licensed personnel.

Dr. Wing said that he has been using the machine in the successful treatment of whiplash and other trauma.

"I have been able to treat whiplash patients and relieve their symptoms within a week," he said, "although some of these people have been under conventional treatment for a year without relief. "Not only does this provide help for the sufferer, it really can reduce health care costs. That is an important consideration today when these costs are spiraling," added Dr. Wing.

Fire Prevention Week observed

Fire Prevention Week will be observed through Saturday.

During this period, the Los Angeles County Fire Department will hold open house at all stations from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Firefighters all over the world cannot understand and wonder in amazement at the senseless loss of lives and property by fire when simple common sense precautionary measures could have prevented a tragic occurrence.

Fires can be prevented.

County fire officials are urging the public to visit the fire stations and get solid information on how to save lives and property. Information on EDITH (Exit Drills in the Home) will be available.

Instructions on the special care needed to protect homes in brush areas will also be available.

Firefighters will explain the Red Flag Alert program in which people in high danger brush areas are encouraged to take special precaution to prevent fires.

The importance of having smoke detectors will also be stressed.

"Fire prevention is the best firefighting tool we have today," said county Fire Chief Clyde A. Bragdon. "We want citizens of Los Angeles County to know their fire department, how it works, what it tries to do for you and how you can help yourself."

Local fire stations which will be open to the public are Station 43, 921 S. Stimson Ave., Industry; Station 61, 19711 E. Valley Blvd., and 146, 20604 Loyalton Drive, Walnut; 62, 4349 N. Padua Ave., 101, 221 W. Second St., and 102, 4370 N. Sumner Ave., Claremont; 64, 114 E. First St., and 141, 1124 W. Puente Ave., San Dimas; 104, 4507 N. Wheeler-La Verne Road, La Verne; 120, 1051 S. Grand Ave., Diamond Bar; and 145, 1525 S. Nogales Ave., Rowland Heights.

Pomona College marks 90 years

Pomona College will celebrate its 90th anniversary on Saturday with a campus festival of learning, music, athletics and a special Founders Day Convocation.

The festivals will be held on campus and throughout Claremont and will also include a picnic, parade and the cutting of a large birthday cake.

Miss Annie M. Gutierrez, associate director of the White House Domestic Policy Staff and a Pomona College honor graduate, will deliver the Founders Day Convocation address at 11 a.m. in Marston Quadrangle.

The celebration begins at 9:30 a.m. with the first of three Festivals of Learning at which Pomona College faculty and students will explore several medical, scientific and philosophical questions, including the "right to die" and artificial reproduction.

After the convocation, President David Alexander will invite guests to join him in a picnic lunch complete with strolling musicians. He and Mrs. Claire McDonald, vice mayor of Claremont, will then cut a birthday cake celebrating Pomona College's 90th anniversary and the city's 70th anniversary (Claremont was founded on Oct. 15, 1907). Picnic box lunches may be reserved in advance by contacting the Pomona College Alumni Association office at 626-8511, ext. 3636.

The second and third Festivals of Learning will be on campus in the afternoon. Among the highlights will be two lecture/demonstrations. One will be on the old music and instruments of Bach's era and the other on Kabuki, a colorful Oriental dance form.

Throughout the day, Pomona College athletic teams will be in action. The water polo team will host Cal State Los Angeles at 10 a.m. in the Pendleton Pool and at 2 p.m. Pomona College-Pitzer's champion soccer team will duel Claremont Men's College. In addition, there will be a badminton demonstration by Stan Hales, associate dean of the college and twice U.S. singles badminton champion, at 3:45 p.m. in the Memorial Gymnasium.

Adding to the college's celebration will be the city of Claremont's Village Venture IV, an arts and crafts, music, dance and food festival; and Griswold's Oktoberfest.

Founders Day is the first of several celebrations commemorating the 90th anniversary, said Dr. Alexander. Throughout the 1977-78 academic year, a series of special celebrations, performances and colloquia will display the vitality of liberal learning at Pomona College in interesting, provocative and entertaining events which feature members of the faculty, students and distinguished guests, he added.

Montclair is moving commercial dreams again.

This time, it's a new Montclair Auto Center. This will serve as a catalyst to the West End city becoming the nucleus of commercial enterprise, according to city and business representatives.

The Montclair Chamber of Commerce will host a champagne mixer Wednesday from 4:30 to 7 p.m. in the University Mazda showroom to officially kickoff development of the auto center at Central Avenue and Holt Boulevard.

Attending will be new dealers George Follmer, Follmer Porsche-Audi-Subaru; O. D. Thomas, Pomona Dodge; Gary Sherman, Frank White Imports; present Montclair car dealers, and chamber, city and community officials.

The auto center concept came from a study of commercial parcels along Central Avenue. These were completed by the Municipal Services, Inc., of Pasadena for the City of Montclair.

Patric Barry, the study coordinator, recommended development of an auto mall at the old Valley Drive-In site. The city hired him last January as the consultant to put the auto center complex together.

Lauren Wasserman, city administrator, Jim Bookhout, chamber president, Dennis Silletto, chamber community development council chairman, and Barry then worked as a team on its development.

The center involves 26 acres at the northeast corner of Central and Holt. It extends north to Kingsley Street. The auto agencies will face on Central, with the city developing the northeast corner into a neighborhood park.

Frontage along Holt — presently occupied by a mobile home sales business — will ultimately generate related auto service companies.

Thomas will be the first — and largest — tenant with Dodge cars and trucks offered in the center by next February.

Sherman anticipates moving his Volvo agency there next August, but will keep his Fiat dealership in Pomona. Follmer will be the last with his Porsche-Audi and Subaru dealerships.

With the new and existing agencies, the auto center will provide a broad selection of vehicles: Pontiac, GMC trucks, Peugeot, Mazda, Mercedes-Benz, Honda, Porsche, Audi, Subaru, Dodge and Volvo.

Silletto, whose father, Jan, owns both the Mazda and University Lincoln-Mercury dealerships in Pomona, said future plans also include relocating the Lincoln-Mercury operation in the area.

The most common factor for the three relocations was the need for additional space.

Follmer, a former internationally famous race car driver, took over the Catron business last January and has moved the total Porsche-Audi sales from 17th place in the Los Angeles metropolitan area to seventh place.

"I don't see any disadvantages to the move or I wouldn't be looking at it," he said. "We're at a point that to better serve our customers we must have a better facility and space. I'm trying to bring my dealership to championship caliber."

Sherman has owned the Frank White Imports, a familiar name in the valley, since September, 1976. He has realized a 40 per cent sales volume increase, going from $1.5 million to $2.6 million.

"We're just plain cramped here. We can't handle the business. When someone pays $11,000 for a Volvo, he should get more than we're able to offer in terms of service and aesthetics," said the former Pasadena car dealer.

Sherman said the auto center "makes it easier for comparative shopping. People are more conscious about buying than they were 10 years ago.

"It will also be easier for each dealership to get parts because of the proximity of other dealerships. Related auto services will provide equipment and facilities not covered under our service contracts," he added.

Thomas, who anticipates an $8 million sales figure by the end of this year, predicted even greater business potential at the new auto center.

He built his dealership from $2 million gross sales annually from his takeover in 1968 and cites the increased traffic volume at Central and Holt and the proximity to escalating West End growth as major factors for larger sales.

The auto center concept was introduced in 1972 at Seaside in the Monterey Peninsula. It has since spread to communities throughout the world.

Barry described the Seaside project as a revitalization project of a blighted downtown area. It is now an extensively landscaped area that is a focal community and entertainment center and commercial hub.

"Seaside broke the ice about the fear of proximity to other dealerships," said Barry. "It increased servicing business and the number of qualified buyers."

Incorporating the park development with the auto center has the double purpose of providing a neighborhood recreation area and creating a buffer between the center and adjacent residents, said Wasserman.

The estimated $700,000 allocation to Montclair from the 1976 State Park and Recreation Bond Act will be used to acquire the four-acre site, he added. And the city anticipates using revenue sharing funds for park development.

Wasserman believes the center will increase property and sales taxes to the city, stimulate other Holt Boulevard development, clean up a blighted commercial site, and eliminate the problems experienced with a drive-in theater on the parcel.

"The drive-in was a real eyesore. We had constant problems of policing, traffic, maintenance, the caliber of movies shown, and legal battles over swap meets.

"Now we'll have a nice, modern development that fits in with our general plan. Police and fire protection will be simpler because of the business concentration into one area," said Wasserman.

He estimated an "easy" increase of $150,000 annually from sales tax revenues generated in the city.

Pomona chiropractor develops non-needle acupuncture machine

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A Pomona chiropractic doctor has developed a non-needle acupuncture machine in the hope of reducing health care costs.

Dr. Thomas W. Wing, who has practiced in Pomona since 1950, designed the Accu-o-Matic equipment which is now being marketed by a Pomona firm after many years of study of acupuncture.

"Not only can the use of the non-needle acupuncture machine reduce the cost of health care by making possible easier assessment of the patient's condition, it can greatly reduce the time required for treatment.

"In some cases, we've reduced the time for treatments from a year down to a week," reported Dr. Wing.

A major advantage of the machine, the Pomonan said, is that it can be used by a nurse or licensed technician, thus reducing further the cost of medical care.

While acupuncture with needles is painful and requires an exact pinpointing of the acupoints, the machine used by Dr. Wing does not demand such exact procedures.

The needle is replaced with a saline-dipped Q-Tip and the meridian acupoints need only be approximated.

Dr. Wing describes the meridians as expressways along which impulses travel to specific organs or parts of the body. The outside stimulation of these meridians at acupoints can be recorded through positive or negative readings on the machine.

The use of stimulation of the acupoints also causes a reaction in the related body part.

A fourth generation doctor, Dr. Wing has always been deeply interested in designing machines. He worked his way through Los Angeles Chiropractic College by repairing machines for other doctors or by designing machines and selling them to doctors at a reduced cost.

One of his early developments was the "beeper" now used by most doctors and many others to keep in radio contact with their offices or hospitals. He sold this invention to Lytton Industries.

Dr. Wing's father came to the United States in 1900 from China and practiced acupuncture in the Visalia and Hanford area for many years, treating patients who came by the trainload from Southern California.

Dr. Wing also practiced acupuncture until 1960, when California law prohibited the puncturing of the skin by chiropractic doctors.

"However, Dr. David Bressler, head of the acupuncture research project at UCLA School of Medicine, says the school now considers acupuncture a medical modality," reported Dr. Wing.

Traditional needle acupuncture has been practiced by the Chinese for over 5,000 years. The first Western glimpse of acupuncture occurred in the 17th century when monks returned from China to France and brought back a new method of treatment — with needles. They named it "acus" for needles and "pungo" for puncture.

While the Japanese have generally been credited with the first use of electricity in acupuncture, the first recorded instance of this new procedure is credited to Salandiere of France who applied small electric currents to needles inserted into the acupoints in the 1700s.

But the popularity of acupuncture faded.

As far as Dr. Wing knows, the first electronic machine invented in the United States was in 1925. It was named Nervistor, probably because it was used for "nerve tracing," a technique popular at that time.

It was not until former President Nixon visited China in 1972 that acupuncture became popular again in this country.

In 1972, the news of anesthesia by acupuncture in China sent shock waves through the United States," added Dr. Wing.

The chiropractor, who has offices in Riverside and Los Angeles also, spends a great deal of his time working with students in schools and demonstrating his machine before research groups. He has been working closely with UCLA and the University of Michigan.

The Accu-o-Matic machine is available only to licensed healing professionals, not the public. Seminars in the use of the equipment are taught by his daughter, Caroline, for licensed personnel.

Dr. Wing said that he has been using the machine in the successful treatment of whiplash and other trauma.

"I have been able to treat whiplash patients and relieve their symptoms within a week," he said, "although some of these people have been under conventional treatment for a year without relief. "Not only does this provide help for the sufferer, it really can reduce health care costs. That is an important consideration today when these costs are spiraling," added Dr. Wing.

Fire Prevention Week observed

Fire Prevention Week will be observed through Saturday.

During this period, the Los Angeles County Fire Department will hold open house at all stations from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Firefighters all over the world cannot understand and wonder in amazement at the senseless loss of lives and property by fire when simple common sense precautionary measures could have prevented a tragic occurrence.

Fires can be prevented.

County fire officials are urging the public to visit the fire stations and get solid information on how to save lives and property. Information on EDITH (Exit Drills in the Home) will be available.

Instructions on the special care needed to protect homes in brush areas will also be available.

Firefighters will explain the Red Flag Alert program in which people in high danger brush areas are encouraged to take special precaution to prevent fires.

The importance of having smoke detectors will also be stressed.

"Fire prevention is the best firefighting tool we have today," said county Fire Chief Clyde A. Bragdon. "We want citizens of Los Angeles County to know their fire department, how it works, what it tries to do for you and how you can help yourself."

Local fire stations which will be open to the public are Station 43, 921 S. Stimson Ave., Industry; Station 61, 19711 E. Valley Blvd., and 146, 20604 Loyalton Drive, Walnut; 62, 4349 N. Padua Ave., 101, 221 W. Second St., and 102, 4370 N. Sumner Ave., Claremont; 64, 114 E. First St., and 141, 1124 W. Puente Ave., San Dimas; 104, 4507 N. Wheeler-La Verne Road, La Verne; 120, 1051 S. Grand Ave., Diamond Bar; and 145, 1525 S. Nogales Ave., Rowland Heights.

Pomona College marks 90 years

Pomona College will celebrate its 90th anniversary on Saturday with a campus festival of learning, music, athletics and a special Founders Day Convocation.

The festivals will be held on campus and throughout Claremont and will also include a picnic, parade and the cutting of a large birthday cake.

Miss Annie M. Gutierrez, associate director of the White House Domestic Policy Staff and a Pomona College honor graduate, will deliver the Founders Day Convocation address at 11 a.m. in Marston Quadrangle.

The celebration begins at 9:30 a.m. with the first of three Festivals of Learning at which Pomona College faculty and students will explore several medical, scientific and philosophical questions, including the "right to die" and artificial reproduction.

After the convocation, President David Alexander will invite guests to join him in a picnic lunch complete with strolling musicians. He and Mrs. Claire McDonald, vice mayor of Claremont, will then cut a birthday cake celebrating Pomona College's 90th anniversary and the city's 70th anniversary (Claremont was founded on Oct. 15, 1907). Picnic box lunches may be reserved in advance by contacting the Pomona College Alumni Association office at 626-8511, ext. 3636.

The second and third Festivals of Learning will be on campus in the afternoon. Among the highlights will be two lecture/demonstrations. One will be on the old music and instruments of Bach's era and the other on Kabuki, a colorful Oriental dance form.

Throughout the day, Pomona College athletic teams will be in action. The water polo team will host Cal State Los Angeles at 10 a.m. in the Pendleton Pool and at 2 p.m. Pomona College-Pitzer's champion soccer team will duel Claremont Men's College. In addition, there will be a badminton demonstration by Stan Hales, associate dean of the college and twice U.S. singles badminton champion, at 3:45 p.m. in the Memorial Gymnasium.

Adding to the college's celebration will be the city of Claremont's Village Venture IV, an arts and crafts, music, dance and food festival; and Griswold's Oktoberfest.

Founders Day is the first of several celebrations commemorating the 90th anniversary, said Dr. Alexander. Throughout the 1977-78 academic year, a series of special celebrations, performances and colloquia will display the vitality of liberal learning at Pomona College in interesting, provocative and entertaining events which feature members of the faculty, students and distinguished guests, he added.

Why farm subsidies?

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland ran into 2,000 very unhappy farmers at Pueblo, Colo., recently. Their message was that they want higher price supports. We shake our heads and wonder what has become of the admirable, hard-working folks on the farms.

It is not an easy tale to tell, but from the beginning of agriculture, farmers have been plagued with boom-bust cycles.

Primitive farmers with extra food took it to markets, trading their surplus for other things they needed. If wheat brought the best trades instead of barley, then the farmers would go home and plant mostly wheat. The next year when they all arrived at the market place, all would be carrying wheat and it wouldn't be worth much because there was an oversupply.

One would think that in the 20th century we would have figured out some smart way to handle this problem. The sad truth is: We haven't.

After some stunning years in 1972 and 1973, farmers by the thousands are going broke.

Part of that legacy is the Earl Butz approach to agriculture. Butz, the secretary under Presidents Ford and Nixon, preached free markets for farmers.

That is an appealing idea. The less government monkeys in our markets, the better. But the boom-bust in farming is too sharp, it seems, to leave the matter to simple supply and demand.

In 1972, Nixon arranged a huge grain sale to the Soviet Union, a move which profited some international grain dealers and sent wheat prices soaring at home.

The Agriculture Department lowered supports and also stopped paying farmers to set aside land and not use it for crops.

The lid was off. The price of wheat ballooned to $6 a bushel in some areas. Farmers planted and planted.

Planting today is expensive. Tractors that sold for $3,300 at the close of World War II now can cost $33,000.

A farmer borrows money to cover the huge costs, then suddenly finds the market has collapsed. If the price stays rock bottom, he is left with a pile of useless, rusting farm machinery and no way to pay his bills.

On a recent week the price range offered farmers in Colorado was between $1.80 and $2.06 a bushel for wheat.

Something else happened in the Butz years. The oil cartel's sudden price rise in 1973 triggered worldwide inflation. Shortly after President Ford took office, he began halting grain shipments to Russia and Poland. The idea was to fight inflation at home. Without the foreign buyers, the American market was hit with unexpected supplies, tumbling the price.

One answer to low prices is making farms so huge that they can get by on wafer-thin profit margins and sending more small farm families off to the cities to live, which is not a popular idea. Also, the cost of farmland nationally has doubled in the last five years.

So what are we to do? We want to save what family farms we have left.

The Carter administration's answer is to go back to subsidies and set-asides. The present farm bill calls for $2.90 a bushel wheat prices and requires farmers to stop using 20 per cent of their present wheat-growing land. (The farm bill affects other crops, too, but wheat is an easy way to explain what is going on.)

And internationally, we are trying to set up a wheat grainery. This "buffer stock" will be sold if the price gets too high. If the price goes down, wheat will be bought to force the price back up. It is a scheme that has worked before and may work again.

We might not like farm subsidies, but it is hard to see any other way to go right now.

Dear Editor:

On Sept. 29, the Progress Bulletin carried an article by Paul Harvey captioned, "Laetrile gets a boost." Careful reading of this article points out one very important item. Dr. Manner apparently failed to conduct tests for cancer cures by using certain vitamins and enzymes only! His tests were conducted by using Laetrile in conjunction with certain vitamins and enzymes. It boils down to this! Laetrile is still worthless as a cancer cure when used by itself and may still be worthless when used with certain vitamins and enzymes. It would certainly be interesting to know the results had these vitamins and enzymes been used by themselves in tests for cancer cures.

The August 1977 issue of Consumers Report has a full write up on Laetrile. It is shocking and should be a "must" to read. To quote from Consumers Report:

"Laetrile is promoted as a pleasant, risk-free way of "treating" cancer . . . But if Laetrile is taken instead of proven remedies, it presents the ultimate risk."

"According to the evidence on hand, Laetrile has no place in the medical marketplace."

"Even more important, the 'Medical Freedom of Choice' bill has no place among the laws of the land. It would turn the clock back to a time when purveyors of worthless nostrums could prey freely on an unprotected public, exploiting the fears of the sick and the desperation of the dying. The fight against charlatans in medicine has been long and hard, and it is far from over. If the political victories of Laetrile turn the battle around, it is indeed a much more dangerous drug than anyone has imagined."

I have to agree with Consumers Report. There comes a time when the public has to be protected from itself. To license Laetrile for sale and use in all states is not unlike helping a person to commit suicide.

Tuning in on Seoul's calls

WASHINGTON — The supersecret National Security Agency intercepted some fascinating communications between the South Korean government in Seoul and its embassy in Washington, outlining grandiose plans to influence Congress.

The incriminating transcripts are being reviewed by the Senate Intelligence Committee, which is conducting a secret inquiry into the government's strange failure to do anything about it.

Copies of the transcripts were distributed over the years to key Washington authorities, including officials of both the Justice Department and the White House. Yet for years, the Korean lobbying effort was ignored by officials who could have intervened.

The intercepted messages do not criminally implicate any specific congressmen and do not mention Korean payoff man Tongsun Park by name. But Park's name was mentioned in classified State Department cables, which we obtained in early 1974.

Our investigation established that Park was engaged in political lobbying and that he had developed a close, curious relationship with then-Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif. — a story we broke on April 1, 1974. The Justice Department has now indicted Park and named Hanna as an unindicted co-conspirator.

The 1974 cables showed that the State Department gave special treatment to Tongsun Park during his travels in the Middle East, probably because he was in the company of the congressman.

In a classified cable to U.S. embassies in the Middle East, the department requested "each post except Cairo" to ensconce Park "in a single room next to or near room reserved for" Rep. Hanna. In Cairo, telegrammed State, "Mr. Park requests a suite on the (Nile) river side of the Hilton."

Not until the following year did the Justice Department begin to investigate the South Korean effort to compromise Congress, although the evidence had been gathering dust in its files for years. Then it took a private letter from Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., to then-Attorney General Edward Levi to get action. The congressman sent Levi a summary of testimony his House international organizations subcommittee had developed.

Finally, on July 17, 1975, we were able to break the explosive story that "the Justice Department is quietly investigating charges that the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, modeled after our own embattled spy agency, has set up illegal front groups to manipulate U.S. public opinion and has even tried to 'buy off' U.S. congressmen."

MORE BOMBINGS? Sources close to the anti-Castro movement warn that Cuban extremists plan a rash of bombings early next week to protest the Panama Canal treaty. The targets are expected to be public structures, such as bridges in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Justice Department sources believe the Cuban terrorist, Orlando Bosch, has participated in the plotting from his jail cell in Venezuela. He was clapped into jail on suspicion of bombing a Cuban airliner, causing 73 deaths.

He has also been linked to the dynamite death of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier in Washington last September. According to secret Senate testimony, Bosch also intended to assassinate Secretary of State Henry Kissinger during his February 1976 visit to Costa Rica.

Shortly before Kissinger's arrival, Bosch slipped into Costa Rica on a false passport. But the FBI and Secret Service had been alerted. They traced Bosch's movements and notifed the Costa Rican authorities. The suspected assassin was arrested and jailed before Kissinger got to town.

Bosch has also been named in testimony as one of 18 anti-Castro leaders who had conspired to kill U.S. and other leaders promoting a Cuban-American detente. He was convicted in 1968 of shelling a Polish freighter with a bazooka while it was moored in Miami. He jumped federal parole and fled to Venezuela in 1974.

Months later, he was reported to be in Curacao, protected by Chilean gunmen.

Baker feels canal heat

and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Since all great drama is drenched in irony, it seems only fitting that the fate of President Carter's proposed Panama Canal treaties should rest in large measure with a man who wants his job in 1980: Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr.

Administration officials readily concede that no one, apart from Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, will have as much influence as Baker on the outcome of the treaty ratification battle in the Senate.

To reach the two-thirds majority required, Carter is going to need a sizeable number of Republican votes — and not just from GOP liberals. "If Baker goes against the treaty, an awful lot of his colleagues can take cover behind his decision and vote 'no' to please their constituents," one State Department source said.

If Baker, on the other hand, chooses to support the treaty, he can probably swing at least three or four wavering Republican senators with him — and every vote is going to count in this fight.

From a political standpoint, Baker's situation is fraught with both danger and opportunity. Conservative foes of the treaty have already singled him out for special pressure, running huge advertisements in Tennessee newspapers proclaiming: "Senator Baker Alone Can Save the Panama Canal."

Baker is up for re-election next year, and he is not impervious to the massive opposition to the treaty in his home state. As of Sept. 20, he had received 6,200 letters on the canal issue — and 6,000 came from people opposed to the treaties.

But the GOP leader is in no real political danger in Tennessee. He could almost certainly ride out any storm at home which might follow a pro-treaty vote.

His most painful problem is in gauging the long-term effects of the canal issue on his presidential aspirations. In the past, Baker has deliberately avoided identification with either ideological wing of the GOP, cultivating the image of a moderate pragmatist.

On this issue, however, there is no middle ground. GOP conservatives will neither forgive nor forget any Republican who casts his vote in favor of Carter's treaties. And the conservatives play a disproportionately heavy role in choosing GOP presidential nominees.

On the other hand, Baker's attractiveness as a centrist politician with a broad appeal across ideological and partisan lines could be severely marred by an alliance with the right wing on such an emotional issue.

And if, by chance, he votes against the treaty and violence erupts in the Canal Zone following a Senate rejection of the pact, Baker might as well kiss the White House goodbye.

For now, Baker plans to keep his own counsel and to use the Foreign Relations Committee hearings as a showring for trotting foes and advocates of the treaties through fair paces.

As minority leader, he has hired two special consultants to prepare detailed briefs for and against the treaties and to coach him on questions that should be asked during his hearings. William Rogers, former assistant secretary of State for Latin America, is shaping the case for the treaties; Georgetown University scholar Roger Montaine is drafting the arguments against ratification.

Baker will also present his own list of suggested witnesses to committee Chairman John Sparksman, D-Ala., and is likely to raise a very public stink if committee leaders try to restrict the scope and duration of the hearings.

At the White House and State Department, treaty advocates are hoping the committee hearings will serve as a consciousness-raising exercise for the American public. But in the hearing room itself, administration witnesses will be directing their pitch primarily at Baker. The senator has a lot of questions ready for them; the fate of the canal treaties may well depend on how he grades the answers to those questions.

Just in jest

I had mowed and edged and trimmed and pruned and, in my eyes at least, the front yard was a thing of beauty and a joy to behold. The next morning I was sure of it, for standing there on the sidewalk was a man who was gazing at my handiwork with what I felt certain was sincere appreciation. But how fleeting are the apparent truths we all too often congratulate ourselves upon . . . how often do worldly hopes turn to ashes! A few minutes later I learned he had just been standing there proudly watching his dog defecate on my lawn.

Pomona wives have come a long way since the year 1904, but in one area they are nowhere near as well off as were Pomona wives three quarters of a century ago. — There were no golf widows in this community in those days. — I can verify that statement by quoting from an item which appeared in the June 14, 1904, issue of the Pomona Daily Review, where it was stated:

"No one in Pomona plays golf any more. That fad lasted only about six months."

GOP changes platform rules

By EARL G. WATERS

Whether it will enhance their ability to elect more office holders or not, the state's Republican Party has taken steps to change its method of adopting party platforms.

Under legislation authored by Assembly Minority leader Paul Priolo the requirement for biennial state conventions of the Republican Party has been repealed. Henceforth, the party platform will be adopted by the State Central Committee, which presently meets twice a year.

Priolo's measure also changes the method for selecting Presidential electors providing that all party officials plus appointees of the state chairman shall serve as the electors.

No doubt the move, which might be called streamlining, was overdue in updating what seems to have become an archaic political process.

It follows similar action taken by the Democrats in 1976 wherein the law requiring state conventions for the adoption of party platforms was repealed. The Democrats had tried earlier to revoke the provision but the bill to do this was vetoed by then Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Under the Democrat plan the State Central Committee, composed of all elected state officials, including congressmen, form the basic committee. Additionally, each delegate names five others to serve on the committee.

While the Republicans have yet to spell out their method of procedures for adopting party platforms, Priolo explained the mechanism for it will be established by the Central Committee.

As a practical matter the party platform, at least in California, has been a somewhat meaningless document. Once adopted, it is usually promptly forgotten.

Its adoption, however, has provided a forum for expression of partisan philosophies with the attendant publicity being envisioned by the politicos as beneficial to their cause.

But the process of considering planks in the platform have provided colorful news copy at the conventions of both parties as the divergent views have clashed, often bitterly.

It is just to avoid such battles that party candidates meekly accept planks in the platform to which they don't subscribe and have no intention of following. Often opposing candidates within the party will compromise on platform planks to gain advantage in the ultimate contest which selects the party's nominee.

This is exactly what happened at the Republican National Convention in 1976 when President Ford avoided platform clashes with Ronald Reagan. Reagan won all the platform battles but lost the nomination war.

While nominees for office in California are selected by a direct primary election and not by party conventions, the platforms adopted by the party usually contain planks which are embarrassing to the candidates. That is the reason copies of party platforms are not widely circulated to the public. Maybe the time will come when both the Democrats and Republicans will repeal any requirement for their adoption even under the new system.

In 1972, Nixon arranged a huge grain sale to the Soviet Union, a move which profited some international grain dealers and sent wheat prices soaring at home.

The Agriculture Department lowered supports and also stopped paying farmers to set aside land and not use it for crops.

The lid was off. The price of wheat ballooned to $6 a bushel in some areas. Farmers planted and planted.

Planting today is expensive. Tractors that sold for $3,300 at the close of World War II now can cost $33,000.

A farmer borrows money to cover the huge costs, then suddenly finds the market has collapsed. If the price stays rock bottom, he is left with a pile of useless, rusting farm machinery and no way to pay his bills.

On a recent week the price range offered farmers in Colorado was between $1.80 and $2.06 a bushel for wheat.

Something else happened in the Butz years. The oil cartel's sudden price rise in 1973 triggered worldwide inflation. Shortly after President Ford took office, he began halting grain shipments to Russia and Poland. The idea was to fight inflation at home. Without the foreign buyers, the American market was hit with unexpected supplies, tumbling the price.

One answer to low prices is making farms so huge that they can get by on wafer-thin profit margins and sending more small farm families off to the cities to live, which is not a popular idea. Also, the cost of farmland nationally has doubled in the last five years.

So what are we to do? We want to save what family farms we have left.

The Carter administration's answer is to go back to subsidies and set-asides. The present farm bill calls for $2.90 a bushel wheat prices and requires farmers to stop using 20 per cent of their present wheat-growing land. (The farm bill affects other crops, too, but wheat is an easy way to explain what is going on.)

And internationally, we are trying to set up a wheat grainery. This "buffer stock" will be sold if the price gets too high. If the price goes down, wheat will be bought to force the price back up. It is a scheme that has worked before and may work again.

We might not like farm subsidies, but it is hard to see any other way to go right now.

Dear Editor:

On Sept. 29, the Progress Bulletin carried an article by Paul Harvey captioned, "Laetrile gets a boost." Careful reading of this article points out one very important item. Dr. Manner apparently failed to conduct tests for cancer cures by using certain vitamins and enzymes only! His tests were conducted by using Laetrile in conjunction with certain vitamins and enzymes. It boils down to this! Laetrile is still worthless as a cancer cure when used by itself and may still be worthless when used with certain vitamins and enzymes. It would certainly be interesting to know the results had these vitamins and enzymes been used by themselves in tests for cancer cures.

The August 1977 issue of Consumers Report has a full write up on Laetrile. It is shocking and should be a "must" to read. To quote from Consumers Report:

"Laetrile is promoted as a pleasant, risk-free way of "treating" cancer . . . But if Laetrile is taken instead of proven remedies, it presents the ultimate risk."

"According to the evidence on hand, Laetrile has no place in the medical marketplace."

"Even more important, the 'Medical Freedom of Choice' bill has no place among the laws of the land. It would turn the clock back to a time when purveyors of worthless nostrums could prey freely on an unprotected public, exploiting the fears of the sick and the desperation of the dying. The fight against charlatans in medicine has been long and hard, and it is far from over. If the political victories of Laetrile turn the battle around, it is indeed a much more dangerous drug than anyone has imagined."

I have to agree with Consumers Report. There comes a time when the public has to be protected from itself. To license Laetrile for sale and use in all states is not unlike helping a person to commit suicide.

Tuning in on Seoul's calls

WASHINGTON — The supersecret National Security Agency intercepted some fascinating communications between the South Korean government in Seoul and its embassy in Washington, outlining grandiose plans to influence Congress.

The incriminating transcripts are being reviewed by the Senate Intelligence Committee, which is conducting a secret inquiry into the government's strange failure to do anything about it.

Copies of the transcripts were distributed over the years to key Washington authorities, including officials of both the Justice Department and the White House. Yet for years, the Korean lobbying effort was ignored by officials who could have intervened.

The intercepted messages do not criminally implicate any specific congressmen and do not mention Korean payoff man Tongsun Park by name. But Park's name was mentioned in classified State Department cables, which we obtained in early 1974.

Our investigation established that Park was engaged in political lobbying and that he had developed a close, curious relationship with then-Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif. — a story we broke on April 1, 1974. The Justice Department has now indicted Park and named Hanna as an unindicted co-conspirator.

The 1974 cables showed that the State Department gave special treatment to Tongsun Park during his travels in the Middle East, probably because he was in the company of the congressman.

In a classified cable to U.S. embassies in the Middle East, the department requested "each post except Cairo" to ensconce Park "in a single room next to or near room reserved for" Rep. Hanna. In Cairo, telegrammed State, "Mr. Park requests a suite on the (Nile) river side of the Hilton."

Not until the following year did the Justice Department begin to investigate the South Korean effort to compromise Congress, although the evidence had been gathering dust in its files for years. Then it took a private letter from Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., to then-Attorney General Edward Levi to get action. The congressman sent Levi a summary of testimony his House international organizations subcommittee had developed.

Finally, on July 17, 1975, we were able to break the explosive story that "the Justice Department is quietly investigating charges that the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, modeled after our own embattled spy agency, has set up illegal front groups to manipulate U.S. public opinion and has even tried to 'buy off' U.S. congressmen."

MORE BOMBINGS? Sources close to the anti-Castro movement warn that Cuban extremists plan a rash of bombings early next week to protest the Panama Canal treaty. The targets are expected to be public structures, such as bridges in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Justice Department sources believe the Cuban terrorist, Orlando Bosch, has participated in the plotting from his jail cell in Venezuela. He was clapped into jail on suspicion of bombing a Cuban airliner, causing 73 deaths.

He has also been linked to the dynamite death of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier in Washington last September. According to secret Senate testimony, Bosch also intended to assassinate Secretary of State Henry Kissinger during his February 1976 visit to Costa Rica.

Shortly before Kissinger's arrival, Bosch slipped into Costa Rica on a false passport. But the FBI and Secret Service had been alerted. They traced Bosch's movements and notifed the Costa Rican authorities. The suspected assassin was arrested and jailed before Kissinger got to town.

Bosch has also been named in testimony as one of 18 anti-Castro leaders who had conspired to kill U.S. and other leaders promoting a Cuban-American detente. He was convicted in 1968 of shelling a Polish freighter with a bazooka while it was moored in Miami. He jumped federal parole and fled to Venezuela in 1974.

Months later, he was reported to be in Curacao, protected by Chilean gunmen.

and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Since all great drama is drenched in irony, it seems only fitting that the fate of President Carter's proposed Panama Canal treaties should rest in large measure with a man who wants his job in 1980: Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr.

Administration officials readily concede that no one, apart from Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, will have as much influence as Baker on the outcome of the treaty ratification battle in the Senate.

To reach the two-thirds majority required, Carter is going to need a sizeable number of Republican votes — and not just from GOP liberals. "If Baker goes against the treaty, an awful lot of his colleagues can take cover behind his decision and vote 'no' to please their constituents," one State Department source said.

If Baker, on the other hand, chooses to support the treaty, he can probably swing at least three or four wavering Republican senators with him — and every vote is going to count in this fight.

From a political standpoint, Baker's situation is fraught with both danger and opportunity. Conservative foes of the treaty have already singled him out for special pressure, running huge advertisements in Tennessee newspapers proclaiming: "Senator Baker Alone Can Save the Panama Canal."

Baker is up for re-election next year, and he is not impervious to the massive opposition to the treaty in his home state. As of Sept. 20, he had received 6,200 letters on the canal issue — and 6,000 came from people opposed to the treaties.

But the GOP leader is in no real political danger in Tennessee. He could almost certainly ride out any storm at home which might follow a pro-treaty vote.

His most painful problem is in gauging the long-term effects of the canal issue on his presidential aspirations. In the past, Baker has deliberately avoided identification with either ideological wing of the GOP, cultivating the image of a moderate pragmatist.

On this issue, however, there is no middle ground. GOP conservatives will neither forgive nor forget any Republican who casts his vote in favor of Carter's treaties. And the conservatives play a disproportionately heavy role in choosing GOP presidential nominees.

On the other hand, Baker's attractiveness as a centrist politician with a broad appeal across ideological and partisan lines could be severely marred by an alliance with the right wing on such an emotional issue.

And if, by chance, he votes against the treaty and violence erupts in the Canal Zone following a Senate rejection of the pact, Baker might as well kiss the White House goodbye.

For now, Baker plans to keep his own counsel and to use the Foreign Relations Committee hearings as a showring for trotting foes and advocates of the treaties through fair paces.

As minority leader, he has hired two special consultants to prepare detailed briefs for and against the treaties and to coach him on questions that should be asked during his hearings. William Rogers, former assistant secretary of State for Latin America, is shaping the case for the treaties; Georgetown University scholar Roger Montaine is drafting the arguments against ratification.

Baker will also present his own list of suggested witnesses to committee Chairman John Sparksman, D-Ala., and is likely to raise a very public stink if committee leaders try to restrict the scope and duration of the hearings.

At the White House and State Department, treaty advocates are hoping the committee hearings will serve as a consciousness-raising exercise for the American public. But in the hearing room itself, administration witnesses will be directing their pitch primarily at Baker. The senator has a lot of questions ready for them; the fate of the canal treaties may well depend on how he grades the answers to those questions.

I had mowed and edged and trimmed and pruned and, in my eyes at least, the front yard was a thing of beauty and a joy to behold. The next morning I was sure of it, for standing there on the sidewalk was a man who was gazing at my handiwork with what I felt certain was sincere appreciation. But how fleeting are the apparent truths we all too often congratulate ourselves upon . . . how often do worldly hopes turn to ashes! A few minutes later I learned he had just been standing there proudly watching his dog defecate on my lawn.

Pomona wives have come a long way since the year 1904, but in one area they are nowhere near as well off as were Pomona wives three quarters of a century ago. — There were no golf widows in this community in those days. — I can verify that statement by quoting from an item which appeared in the June 14, 1904, issue of the Pomona Daily Review, where it was stated:

"No one in Pomona plays golf any more. That fad lasted only about six months."

By EARL G. WATERS

Whether it will enhance their ability to elect more office holders or not, the state's Republican Party has taken steps to change its method of adopting party platforms.

Under legislation authored by Assembly Minority leader Paul Priolo the requirement for biennial state conventions of the Republican Party has been repealed. Henceforth, the party platform will be adopted by the State Central Committee, which presently meets twice a year.

Priolo's measure also changes the method for selecting Presidential electors providing that all party officials plus appointees of the state chairman shall serve as the electors.

No doubt the move, which might be called streamlining, was overdue in updating what seems to have become an archaic political process.

It follows similar action taken by the Democrats in 1976 wherein the law requiring state conventions for the adoption of party platforms was repealed. The Democrats had tried earlier to revoke the provision but the bill to do this was vetoed by then Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Under the Democrat plan the State Central Committee, composed of all elected state officials, including congressmen, form the basic committee. Additionally, each delegate names five others to serve on the committee.

While the Republicans have yet to spell out their method of procedures for adopting party platforms, Priolo explained the mechanism for it will be established by the Central Committee.

As a practical matter the party platform, at least in California, has been a somewhat meaningless document. Once adopted, it is usually promptly forgotten.

Its adoption, however, has provided a forum for expression of partisan philosophies with the attendant publicity being envisioned by the politicos as beneficial to their cause.

But the process of considering planks in the platform have provided colorful news copy at the conventions of both parties as the divergent views have clashed, often bitterly.

It is just to avoid such battles that party candidates meekly accept planks in the platform to which they don't subscribe and have no intention of following. Often opposing candidates within the party will compromise on platform planks to gain advantage in the ultimate contest which selects the party's nominee.

This is exactly what happened at the Republican National Convention in 1976 when President Ford avoided platform clashes with Ronald Reagan. Reagan won all the platform battles but lost the nomination war.

While nominees for office in California are selected by a direct primary election and not by party conventions, the platforms adopted by the party usually contain planks which are embarrassing to the candidates. That is the reason copies of party platforms are not widely circulated to the public. Maybe the time will come when both the Democrats and Republicans will repeal any requirement for their adoption even under the new system.

Dr. Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Several times this year I was sure my parakeets were going to raise a family. They were nesting, she laid eggs, but then, every time, those lowdown critters stooped to eating their own eggs! If I'm ever to get them to raise a family, I've got to get them to stop eating their eggs. Is there any way to do this? — H.R.

DEAR H.R.: Parental potential for egg-pickin' parakeets can be increased considerably with the swipe and switch technique. Next time your hen has laid down on the job (successfully), stealthily substitute marbles of similar size and color for those eggs. A few hearty attempts to feast on marbles will usually discourage perverse parakeets sufficiently so they will think at least twice before trying it again even with genuine eggs.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I am looking after my next door neighbor's place since she is on vacation. She has some bee hives which I really don't look after very close. Suddenly I am worried about her bees because while I can't tell they are sick, I coincidentally heard they are using a pesticide called Penn Cap-M not very far from here.

It's my understanding that this product is terribly deadly against bees. Is this true? If the bees escape it until my neighbor gets back in a month, are they safe? — B.R.

DEAR B.R.: Unfortunately, Penn Cap-M is indeed particularly deadly to bees. Survival for a month wouldn't insure the safety of the hive since bees may bring this long-acting pesticide back to the hive, seal it in honey, then become poisoned during the winter when they dig into their food reserves.

(The owner may want to be sure they receive a different food this winter.) You didn't mention just how close the pesticide is to their hives and that has a bearing since the bees generally forage within two miles, but not more than three miles, of the hive. Obviously, if the pesticide were not used within four miles of the hive the bees would be safe.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Barcas had a good coat during the summer, but now he is starting to shed again. Isn't this a strange time of year for a beagle to be shedding? — S.T.

DEAR S.T.: No, not really. Barcas Beagle's summer hair coat would normally last two to four months. Then, in the fall, he could be expected to begin shedding and preparing to produce his winter coat.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
Your Birthday, Oct. 11, 1977

There may be something you'd like to try as a sideline, hobby or avocation this coming year. By all means pursue it. It could lead to something far more interesting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An influential friend who is usually willing to help you may not be accessible today. It's best to plan on going it alone, to avoid disappointment. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each sign and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O.Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your returns are usually in proportion to the time, effort and money you've invested. Don't expect a windfall today from the pittance you gave a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid financial involvement today with those you know little about. All may appear A-OK on the surface, but that's not good enough.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The opinions you espouse are not popular with the majority today. You could get hit with a tomato for your efforts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you're innovative in developing new methods. Today, however, the labor-saving devices you champion may cause more work.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major changes should not be made impulsively today. Sleep on them. You could later be unhappy with your decision.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wary of making lavish promises today for the sake of expediency. The momentary friends you make could become long-term enemies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a better postponer today than you are a producer. Convert the energy you'd use making excuses into a drive to get things done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a strong possibility your priorities are out of kilter today. You're interested in many things, but get little done.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In family matters today try not to be so opinionated that there's no room for thoughts of others. They could be even more fruitful than yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very cautious today in drawing the line between rational thinking and irrational optimism. Too much of the latter will lead you awry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a strong possibility today that your overwhelming desire for an object may lead you to pay more for it than it's worth. Try to control yourself.

Ann Landers

Under-20 group against work

Dear Ann Landers: I read with disappointment your answer to "Jerry in Yonkers." So he hates work (most people do) and is satisfied to settle for meager wages so long as he can keep his car running, enjoy the open road, relax with a can of beer and a story by Faulkner. You told him this country wasn't built by the likes of him, then you marched forward to uphold the Protestant ethic — hard work, striving to get ahead, etc.

The way I see it, why work your tail off for a few more dollars? So you can go down to Florida — or out to California and sit on your boat with your ulcers?

Why knock the primitive cultures? At least they know how to enjoy their leisure time. Hunting and gathering societies have fewer tensions than those who live in industrial societies.

Auden called our age "The Age of Anxiety." The films of our time, the poerty, TV, newspapers and nearly every aspect of our "civilized" world reflect that anxiety. This is progress? If it is, has "progress" made us happier? — Back To The Caves

Dear Friend: When you get Back to the Caves say hello to the monkeys.

Your letter was one of hundreds I received — saying the same thing. And most of them from the under-20 group — anti-establishment, anti-industry, anti-business, anti-money . . . and anti-work.

Many readers pointed out that I am luckier than most. I have a job I thoroughly enjoy and an opportunity to travel and meet interesting people. They are right. But I wonder if they know how hard I work at this job, and what it takes to put out 365 columns a year — for 22 years in a row.

Write to me in 1987, kids. You'll be surprised at how your ideas will have changed. Some of you will be bitter and envious of those who have "made it." Others will be mad at themselves for having let the early years of preparation slip by. And still others will be too full of beer to care.

Dear Ann: Six months ago our dear daughter died after a two-year illnes. She and her husband were both 35. They had no children.

Yesterday our son-in-law told us he has a girlfriend. I am stunned. Am I wrong to feel he could not have cared much for his wife if he is seeing another woman so soon? Where is his respect for his deceased wife's memory? — Hillsdale

Dear Hillsdale: No one can decide for another how long he should mourn. You should be happy your son-in-law was able to recover from his loss within a few months. I hope you will tell him so.

Dear Ann Landers: You've said it before but will you please say it again — for the record? An awful lot of people in Middletown, N.Y., would be grateful to see it in print.

When the bridegroom backs out of the wedding at the last minute, should the bride return the shower and wedding gifts? A simple yes or no will do. Thank you. — ASAP

Dear ASAP: The answer is a simple yes.

A no-nonsense approach on how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How to lead a colorful life

Ever since the first cave woman accidentally daubed a little red clay on her cheek and admired the effect in a quiet pond, women have been smearing their faces with a wide assortment of paints, crayons, powders and oils.

When the Civil War belles were ringing, a little rice powder to reduce the sheen of the damask cheek was as far as a lady could go, kisserwise. Demure dabbings with rouge came along in Grandma's day, the daring thing.

Lipstick — it's hard to believe — came on in my day, and came off then, too. ("But, honey, I must have brushed against some woman in the subway to get that on my collar." "Oh? And what subway runs between Pomona and Claremont?")

If the poor bewildered male of the species thought that the last frontier of cosmetics had been reached when the girls had painted their lips, cheeks, eyes and nails, dyed their hair and plucked their eyebrows, he was in for a shock. (Cosmetics, in case you're interested — or even awake — comes from kosmetikos, meaning "skilled in decoration." Think that over next time you're wiping the lipstick off your chin.)

The latest developments in the beauty line are rouge for the ear lobes and chin, three-color eye makeup, double foundations and striped lipstick. Young men will soon be wondering if they're dating a girl or a circus poster. Go into a passionate embrace with your dollybird, and you'll come away looking like Pagliaccio.

Striped lipstick? Who wants to kiss a crosswalk? White lipstick is bad enough — I've seen corpses that looked healthier than a girl in that gloop. Rouge on ears and chin is fine. Make her look like she lost a decision to a plate of spaghetti. The special "ear cosmetic" is a pearlescent cream in pale pink, applied on the lobes and "brushed back for a wing-like effect." Every girl a Bat Woman.

And why overlook the nose while we're spreading these gaudy goodies all over the female physiognomy? How about a large blob of pearlescent cream in bright green, brushed spirally for that hub-cap effect?

Most women with eye shadow tend to look a little like a raccoon, but with triple dip, you'll think you're dancing with a traffic signal. High fashion suggests sky blue paint (they call it shadow) on the lid, a "neutral tone (fawn or topaz) in the crease of the lid, and royal blue, emerald green or charcoal under the peeper. The crow's feet should be accentuated with midnight purple. (My own contribution.)

They even have cosmetics — softening cream, skin bracer, moisturized foundation and "dusting of rouge" — for the wide open spaces exposed by the new plunging necklines, but we won't go into that.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been unable to find the proper value for triglycerides anywhere. What is the normal amount?

DEAR READER — It depends upon the method and the state of the patient when studied. In general if the patient is in the fasting state — not having eaten for at least 12 hours — the level should be below 150 milligrams in 100 milliliters of blood.

Remember that triglycerides are simply fats. The amount of fat in the blood varies greatly with what you have eaten recently. Fat is slowly absorbed and slowly cleared from the blood stream compared to sugar. It is much more affected by a recent meal than your cholesterol level. One reason you are having trouble finding normal values is because of its variability.

The triglyceride level will also fall if you exercise vigorously. The amount of exercise in the preceding 48 hours may affect your triglyceride level.

The triglyceride level alone has not been found to be as useful as the cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks. When the size of the particles formed by the triglyceride-cholesterol combination is considered, the risk calculation for people over 50 can be improved. In that age group the amounts of particles of different sizes become more important than the cholesterol level alone. Those who want more information about triglycerides can send for The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — As a young child I acquired a habit of putting my forefinger in my navel and digging as a way of going to sleep at night. When I was about 10 and in the hospital with pneumonia a young nurse told me if I didn't stop doing that I would get cancer. This has plagued me day and night. I might add that I didn't stop doing this. I am now a nature woman of 57 and the mother of 10 healthy children.

I am so worried because I have strange feelings and shooting sensations around my navel and the lower part of my body. My doctor says you can't get cancer of the navel. Could you give me your views on this? I'm so frightened of the disease but I don't understand cancer at all.

DEAR READER — Your letter is a good example of why people should never try to change a child's habits by frightening them of some dire consequence, other than a good padding if warranted. That young nurse unwittingly planted the seed for you to use in responding to your anxiety reactions.

No, no, no, fingering your navel will not cause cancer. Cancer is simply cell growth that has gone berserk allowing uncontrolled abnormal growth. For example, liver cancer is a rapid disorganized growth of liver cells. Many factors can stimulate the wild growth.

Why don't you ask your doctor to have you see a psychiatrist for some professional counseling. If you can get at the root of your real anxiety then its manifestation, excessive fear of cancer, may be controlled.

Oswald: "One of the real benefits derived from membership in the American Contract Bridge League is the monthly bulletin that includes a great deal of valuable bridge information."

Jim: "Undoubtedly, the ones of greatest value to the ordinary player are Easley Blackwood's series of hands showing basic play. Here is a very good one."

Oswald: "The slam bid is a perfect one, but many players would lose it because West holds both the ace and jack of clubs."

Jim: "The winning player sees an extra chance. Maybe dummy's fourth diamond can be established. So he starts proceedings by discarding two diamonds on dummy's ace and king of hearts. Then he cashes the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond, enter dummy with the king of trumps over his own queen and ruffs another diamond. Everyone follows and he has a parking place for his six of clubs. If diamonds failed to break he could still try the club play."

Oswald: "Note Easley's bidding. South did not use Blackwood because he had a void suit."

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader wants to know what the penalty is for a player who reminds partner during the bidding that there is a part score.

Bridge rules provide no penalty except that the offender's partner may be barred. Thus, if the bidding has gone one club-two clubs-three clubs and the three-club bidder says, "We have 40 on score," the offender wants to bar his partner so the only penalty available is to stop playing with the culprit.

GRANT'S REAL NAME

Q. "What was President Ulysses Simpson Grant's real name?"

A. Hiram Ulysses Grant. The congressman who sponsored his nomination to West Point got it mixed up on the application, and Grant decided to let it go through as it was rather than tinker with a fix.

Q. "What's the largest number of people ever strung up on one gallows?"

A. 38. That's how many Sioux Indians were hanged at once by Willian J. Duly at Mankato, Minn., just 115 years ago.

Q. "What's the Spanish curseword 'catorce' mean?"

A. Fourteen. Not exactly obscene, what? You're supposed to come down hard on the "cat" to give it a cutting edge.

Dr. Miller
Fool parakeets with marbles

DEAR DR. MILLER: Several times this year I was sure my parakeets were going to raise a family. They were nesting, she laid eggs, but then, every time, those lowdown critters stooped to eating their own eggs! If I'm ever to get them to raise a family, I've got to get them to stop eating their eggs. Is there any way to do this? — H.R.

DEAR H.R.: Parental potential for egg-pickin' parakeets can be increased considerably with the swipe and switch technique. Next time your hen has laid down on the job (successfully), stealthily substitute marbles of similar size and color for those eggs. A few hearty attempts to feast on marbles will usually discourage perverse parakeets sufficiently so they will think at least twice before trying it again even with genuine eggs.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I am looking after my next door neighbor's place since she is on vacation. She has some bee hives which I really don't look after very close. Suddenly I am worried about her bees because while I can't tell they are sick, I coincidentally heard they are using a pesticide called Penn Cap-M not very far from here.

It's my understanding that this product is terribly deadly against bees. Is this true? If the bees escape it until my neighbor gets back in a month, are they safe? — B.R.

DEAR B.R.: Unfortunately, Penn Cap-M is indeed particularly deadly to bees. Survival for a month wouldn't insure the safety of the hive since bees may bring this long-acting pesticide back to the hive, seal it in honey, then become poisoned during the winter when they dig into their food reserves.

(The owner may want to be sure they receive a different food this winter.) You didn't mention just how close the pesticide is to their hives and that has a bearing since the bees generally forage within two miles, but not more than three miles, of the hive. Obviously, if the pesticide were not used within four miles of the hive the bees would be safe.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Barcas had a good coat during the summer, but now he is starting to shed again. Isn't this a strange time of year for a beagle to be shedding? — S.T.

DEAR S.T.: No, not really. Barcas Beagle's summer hair coat would normally last two to four months. Then, in the fall, he could be expected to begin shedding and preparing to produce his winter coat.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
Your Birthday, Oct. 11, 1977

There may be something you'd like to try as a sideline, hobby or avocation this coming year. By all means pursue it. It could lead to something far more interesting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An influential friend who is usually willing to help you may not be accessible today. It's best to plan on going it alone, to avoid disappointment. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each sign and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O.Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your returns are usually in proportion to the time, effort and money you've invested. Don't expect a windfall today from the pittance you gave a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid financial involvement today with those you know little about. All may appear A-OK on the surface, but that's not good enough.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The opinions you espouse are not popular with the majority today. You could get hit with a tomato for your efforts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you're innovative in developing new methods. Today, however, the labor-saving devices you champion may cause more work.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major changes should not be made impulsively today. Sleep on them. You could later be unhappy with your decision.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wary of making lavish promises today for the sake of expediency. The momentary friends you make could become long-term enemies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a better postponer today than you are a producer. Convert the energy you'd use making excuses into a drive to get things done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a strong possibility your priorities are out of kilter today. You're interested in many things, but get little done.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In family matters today try not to be so opinionated that there's no room for thoughts of others. They could be even more fruitful than yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very cautious today in drawing the line between rational thinking and irrational optimism. Too much of the latter will lead you awry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a strong possibility today that your overwhelming desire for an object may lead you to pay more for it than it's worth. Try to control yourself.

Ann Landers
Under-20 group against work

Dear Ann Landers: I read with disappointment your answer to "Jerry in Yonkers." So he hates work (most people do) and is satisfied to settle for meager wages so long as he can keep his car running, enjoy the open road, relax with a can of beer and a story by Faulkner. You told him this country wasn't built by the likes of him, then you marched forward to uphold the Protestant ethic — hard work, striving to get ahead, etc.

The way I see it, why work your tail off for a few more dollars? So you can go down to Florida — or out to California and sit on your boat with your ulcers?

Why knock the primitive cultures? At least they know how to enjoy their leisure time. Hunting and gathering societies have fewer tensions than those who live in industrial societies.

Auden called our age "The Age of Anxiety." The films of our time, the poerty, TV, newspapers and nearly every aspect of our "civilized" world reflect that anxiety. This is progress? If it is, has "progress" made us happier? — Back To The Caves

Dear Friend: When you get Back to the Caves say hello to the monkeys.

Your letter was one of hundreds I received — saying the same thing. And most of them from the under-20 group — anti-establishment, anti-industry, anti-business, anti-money . . . and anti-work.

Many readers pointed out that I am luckier than most. I have a job I thoroughly enjoy and an opportunity to travel and meet interesting people. They are right. But I wonder if they know how hard I work at this job, and what it takes to put out 365 columns a year — for 22 years in a row.

Write to me in 1987, kids. You'll be surprised at how your ideas will have changed. Some of you will be bitter and envious of those who have "made it." Others will be mad at themselves for having let the early years of preparation slip by. And still others will be too full of beer to care.

Dear Ann: Six months ago our dear daughter died after a two-year illnes. She and her husband were both 35. They had no children.

Yesterday our son-in-law told us he has a girlfriend. I am stunned. Am I wrong to feel he could not have cared much for his wife if he is seeing another woman so soon? Where is his respect for his deceased wife's memory? — Hillsdale

Dear Hillsdale: No one can decide for another how long he should mourn. You should be happy your son-in-law was able to recover from his loss within a few months. I hope you will tell him so.

Dear Ann Landers: You've said it before but will you please say it again — for the record? An awful lot of people in Middletown, N.Y., would be grateful to see it in print.

When the bridegroom backs out of the wedding at the last minute, should the bride return the shower and wedding gifts? A simple yes or no will do. Thank you. — ASAP

Dear ASAP: The answer is a simple yes.

A no-nonsense approach on how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How to lead a colorful life

Ever since the first cave woman accidentally daubed a little red clay on her cheek and admired the effect in a quiet pond, women have been smearing their faces with a wide assortment of paints, crayons, powders and oils.

When the Civil War belles were ringing, a little rice powder to reduce the sheen of the damask cheek was as far as a lady could go, kisserwise. Demure dabbings with rouge came along in Grandma's day, the daring thing.

Lipstick — it's hard to believe — came on in my day, and came off then, too. ("But, honey, I must have brushed against some woman in the subway to get that on my collar." "Oh? And what subway runs between Pomona and Claremont?")

If the poor bewildered male of the species thought that the last frontier of cosmetics had been reached when the girls had painted their lips, cheeks, eyes and nails, dyed their hair and plucked their eyebrows, he was in for a shock. (Cosmetics, in case you're interested — or even awake — comes from kosmetikos, meaning "skilled in decoration." Think that over next time you're wiping the lipstick off your chin.)

The latest developments in the beauty line are rouge for the ear lobes and chin, three-color eye makeup, double foundations and striped lipstick. Young men will soon be wondering if they're dating a girl or a circus poster. Go into a passionate embrace with your dollybird, and you'll come away looking like Pagliaccio.

Striped lipstick? Who wants to kiss a crosswalk? White lipstick is bad enough — I've seen corpses that looked healthier than a girl in that gloop. Rouge on ears and chin is fine. Make her look like she lost a decision to a plate of spaghetti. The special "ear cosmetic" is a pearlescent cream in pale pink, applied on the lobes and "brushed back for a wing-like effect." Every girl a Bat Woman.

And why overlook the nose while we're spreading these gaudy goodies all over the female physiognomy? How about a large blob of pearlescent cream in bright green, brushed spirally for that hub-cap effect?

Most women with eye shadow tend to look a little like a raccoon, but with triple dip, you'll think you're dancing with a traffic signal. High fashion suggests sky blue paint (they call it shadow) on the lid, a "neutral tone (fawn or topaz) in the crease of the lid, and royal blue, emerald green or charcoal under the peeper. The crow's feet should be accentuated with midnight purple. (My own contribution.)

They even have cosmetics — softening cream, skin bracer, moisturized foundation and "dusting of rouge" — for the wide open spaces exposed by the new plunging necklines, but we won't go into that.

Exercise affects fat levels

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been unable to find the proper value for triglycerides anywhere. What is the normal amount?

DEAR READER — It depends upon the method and the state of the patient when studied. In general if the patient is in the fasting state — not having eaten for at least 12 hours — the level should be below 150 milligrams in 100 milliliters of blood.

Remember that triglycerides are simply fats. The amount of fat in the blood varies greatly with what you have eaten recently. Fat is slowly absorbed and slowly cleared from the blood stream compared to sugar. It is much more affected by a recent meal than your cholesterol level. One reason you are having trouble finding normal values is because of its variability.

The triglyceride level will also fall if you exercise vigorously. The amount of exercise in the preceding 48 hours may affect your triglyceride level.

The triglyceride level alone has not been found to be as useful as the cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks. When the size of the particles formed by the triglyceride-cholesterol combination is considered, the risk calculation for people over 50 can be improved. In that age group the amounts of particles of different sizes become more important than the cholesterol level alone. Those who want more information about triglycerides can send for The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — As a young child I acquired a habit of putting my forefinger in my navel and digging as a way of going to sleep at night. When I was about 10 and in the hospital with pneumonia a young nurse told me if I didn't stop doing that I would get cancer. This has plagued me day and night. I might add that I didn't stop doing this. I am now a nature woman of 57 and the mother of 10 healthy children.

I am so worried because I have strange feelings and shooting sensations around my navel and the lower part of my body. My doctor says you can't get cancer of the navel. Could you give me your views on this? I'm so frightened of the disease but I don't understand cancer at all.

DEAR READER — Your letter is a good example of why people should never try to change a child's habits by frightening them of some dire consequence, other than a good paddling if warranted. That young nurse unwittingly planted the seed for you to use in responding to your anxiety reactions.

No, no, no, fingering your navel will not cause cancer. Cancer is simply cell growth that has gone berserk allowing uncontrolled abnormal growth. For example, liver cancer is a rapid disorganized growth of liver cells. Many factors can stimulate the wild growth.

Why don't you ask your doctor to have you see a psychiatrist for some professional counseling. If you can get at the root of your real anxiety then its manifestation, excessive fear of cancer, may be controlled.

Camera angles: better negatives

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

When I first became a photo enthusiast, more than 50 years ago, doing your own darkroom work was almost a necessity. There were no custom labs or photo finishers giving specialized services with films and enlargements. People left their films at the drug store and judged their picture-taking efforts by the prints they received.

If they got a bad set of prints, they generally believed their photography was at fault. They rarely checked the negatives to see if better prints could be made. When they became knowledgeable enough to "read" their negatives, the most likely next step was to graduate to darkroom work.

Today, photofinishing labs serve the country, and custom labs can be found in all cities or their specialized services are available by mail. At the same time, many more photo fans and serious hobbyists have begun doing their own darkroom work. They find it more economical and it gives them greater personal satisfaction.

Like other darkroom workers, I develop my black-andwhite film by "time and temperature," according to the charts which come with each brand of developer. There is normal processing or, when film is exposed at more than its rated speed, "push" processing by extending developing time. This is fine for all films properly exposed with an accurate light meter or under standard conditions.

But what if the meter goes out of whack and you take wild guesses under difficult lighting situations? That's when you should know how the best custom labs develop film by inspection, as well as by time and temperature, for maximum quality.

I learned about it from Ralph Baum, founder of Modernage Labs, New York's largest custom lab. He believes inspection development is a useful darkroom procedure that could be invaluable in an emergency. It could be needed when pictures are taken by uncertain available light; when you come across a roll of film and don't remember how it was shot, or when the camera is set for one type of film but another type is used.

Learning to judge film development by inspection can only be by experience. So you start with film you know is properly exposed and for which you know the proper time and temperature for development. You must inspect such film again and again.

Each film is inspected twice: first, halfway through the estimated processing time; second, just before the time is up. It is looked at by reflected green light from a Wratten Series No. 3 filter with a 15-watt bulb in the safelight. The first inspection at the halfway mark is from a distance of about four feet for about two or three seconds. Film becomes less sensitive with development so the second inspection can be a little closer to the safelight and a second or two longer.

By practicing with film you know is properly exposed and developed, you learn what film should look like at the halfway time and when it is fully developed. Here's how that knowledge comes in handy in an emergency:

If the film at the first inspection looks the way it should when fully developed, you know the film was overexposed and should be removed from the developer immediately. If, however, the film at the second inspection still looks as it does normally at the first inspection, then you can be sure the film has been underexposed and should remain in the developer for "pushing." You can compensate for overexposures and underexposures by removing film from the developer at anywhere from half to twice the normal development time.

Films can also be desensitized for closer inspections by using special dyes. There's a choice of pinakryptol green, pinakryptol yellow or Kodak Desensitizer, pre-bath type. They are expensive but can be used in high dilutions and stored for a long time in brown bottles.

By giving film a two-minute desensitizing treatment with pinakryptol green, you can use a 25-watt bulb with the green No. 3 filter and inspect it one foot from the safelight at the halfway point for about four seconds. For a second inspection, you can come closer and inspect longer.

"While practicing with film you know to be properly exposed," Baum says, "you'll notice that the image shows up mainly on the emulsion side — usually as frames of solid-appearing tone. On the backing side, only the hottest highlights show through, usually looking somewhat like pencil sketch marks or accents. When the solid tone on the emulsion side is dark enough, and the highlights show through rather definitely, it's time to end the development. The timer should ring then for the film to go into the hypo."

Court serves nine countries

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — To an American lawyer, a session of the European Court of Justice may recall a chorus scene from a musical rather than the momentous constitutional process of building new laws for nine countries.

The nine judges file solemnly into the modern courtroom wearing white neckbands, flowing purple robes and flat-topped caps to match. They take their seats under huge murals done in a bright fantastic style resembling the work of painter Marc Chagall.

Their caps, which look something like squashed-in chef's hats, are removed before proceedings start. The judges ceremoniously put them on again before they issue their decision. The decision itself is always unanimous — but not delivered in chorus.

Each judge comes from a different country of the European Common Market to the new glass and steel building put up for them on a hill outside this tiny capital. Luxembourg, with only 350,000 citizens, smallest of the nine countries, was considered the most appropriate spot for the court's job.

There is nothing funny about the court's job. It is basic to the Common Market, and much like the task that Chief Justice John Marshall performed for the young American republic 150 years ago. By carefully reasoned decisions the European court is drawing the nine sovereign states of the Common Marcet into a closer European union, though the union may never be as close as the one that the 13 American states succeeded in forging.

The president of the court — Americans would call him chief justice — is Hans Kutscher, a long-time judge on the West German Constitutional Court before he was sent to Luxembourg.

"The Common Market is not a state, not even a federated state," he explained.

"Its feature is that the member states have handed over their sovereign rights on economic and social policy to be jointly exercised by the organs of the community. But there's a limit to what the community can do."

The organs of the community have been built by the member governments: Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Ireland, Denmark and Luxembourg. They are much like the branches of a federal government, and when they were first planned 20 years ago it was hoped they would develop into a United States of Europe.

They include a 13-man executive body, called the European Commission.

It is headed now by a Briton: Roy Jenkins, who was once a candidate for prime minister at home. The commission draws up bills called draft directives or regulations, intended to be binding in all the member countries.

These bills are passed, amended or turned down by a council representing the member governments, much as the U.S. Congress used to represent the states rather than the voters of the whole country in the early days of the republic.

Basic rules are laid down in treaties, notably the Treaty of Rome of 1958. This treaty reads like a constitution, and has much the same status.

By KAREN BLAKER, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I think I am ruining my life by trying to be perfect. I can't stand to fail so I don't try anything that I can't do well. I have been in therapy for several years and was making good progress until last month when I began noticing that my therapist wasn't remembering important things I had said. Should I trust her? Maybe I didn't choose the perfect therapist for me.

DEAR READER — Maybe your need to have a perfect therapist surfaced so quickly (assuming your therapist didn't develop a severe memory impairment overnight), because you had started talking about something painful. It sounds as if you "used" your preoccupation with perfection to put distance between yourself and your therapist.

If you really cannot trust anyone who is not perfect, why write to me and perhaps accept my view of your situation? You don't know me. On what basis did you decide I could be trusted?

Is it possible that your desire to be "perfect" and wanting others to be perfect could be camouflaging another and perhaps more basic problem? It would be a worthwhile exercise for you to look back at those relationships or projects you began and then dropped because you (or others) failed to live up to some particular yardstick of perfection. What else was happening at about the same time that might have touched off your anxieties about such imperfections? Were you getting a little closer to someone else, or enjoying some project? Maybe you are trying to avoid success.

Because no human being is perfect, a commitment to perfection is a sure-fire path to failure. To demand perfection is to be self-destructive. This might be something to talk about when you go back to see that very human therapist of yours. P.S. Even for those not obsessed by such an extreme drive for perfection it is a good idea to make a regular practice of trying something that you know you cannot do well. Do it just to personally acknowledge that success and pleasure need not always be synonymous.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Due to volume of mail she cannot reply personally, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

When I first became a photo enthusiast, more than 50 years ago, doing your own darkroom work was almost a necessity. There were no custom labs or photo finishers giving specialized services with films and enlargements. People left their films at the drug store and judged their picture-taking efforts by the prints they received.

If they got a bad set of prints, they generally believed their photography was at fault. They rarely checked the negatives to see if better prints could be made. When they became knowledgeable enough to "read" their negatives, the most likely next step was to graduate to darkroom work.

Today, photofinishing labs serve the country, and custom labs can be found in all cities or their specialized services are available by mail. At the same time, many more photo fans and serious hobbyists have begun doing their own darkroom work. They find it more economical and it gives them greater personal satisfaction.

Like other darkroom workers, I develop my black-andwhite film by "time and temperature," according to the charts which come with each brand of developer. There is normal processing or, when film is exposed at more than its rated speed, "push" processing by extending developing time. This is fine for all films properly exposed with an accurate light meter or under standard conditions.

But what if the meter goes out of whack and you take wild guesses under difficult lighting situations? That's when you should know how the best custom labs develop film by inspection, as well as by time and temperature, for maximum quality.

I learned about it from Ralph Baum, founder of Modernage Labs, New York's largest custom lab. He believes inspection development is a useful darkroom procedure that could be invaluable in an emergency. It could be needed when pictures are taken by uncertain available light; when you come across a roll of film and don't remember how it was shot, or when the camera is set for one type of film but another type is used.

Learning to judge film development by inspection can only be by experience. So you start with film you know is properly exposed and for which you know the proper time and temperature for development. You must inspect such film again and again.

Each film is inspected twice: first, halfway through the estimated processing time; second, just before the time is up. It is looked at by reflected green light from a Wratten Series No. 3 filter with a 15-watt bulb in the safelight. The first inspection at the halfway mark is from a distance of about four feet for about two or three seconds. Film becomes less sensitive with development so the second inspection can be a little closer to the safelight and a second or two longer.

By practicing with film you know is properly exposed and developed, you learn what film should look like at the halfway time and when it is fully developed. Here's how that knowledge comes in handy in an emergency:

If the film at the first inspection looks the way it should when fully developed, you know the film was overexposed and should be removed from the developer immediately. If, however, the film at the second inspection still looks as it does normally at the first inspection, then you can be sure the film has been underexposed and should remain in the developer for "pushing." You can compensate for overexposures and underexposures by removing film from the developer at anywhere from half to twice the normal development time.

Films can also be desensitized for closer inspections by using special dyes. There's a choice of pinakryptol green, pinakryptol yellow or Kodak Desensitizer, pre-bath type. They are expensive but can be used in high dilutions and stored for a long time in brown bottles.

On the backing side, only the hottest highlights show through, usually looking somewhat like pencil sketch marks or accents. BUDDIES FOR NOW

Owner George Steinbrenner, left, and manager Billy Martin hug each other after the Yankees won the American League pennant Sunday night in Kansas City. Steinbrenner and Martin have had harsh words for each other during season but winning does help cool matters.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Perfectly befitting their style and reputation, Billy Martin and his New York Yankees barged into a second straight World Series Sunday night with dash, drama, theatrics and controversy.

Three outs away from a defeat that many Yankee watchers felt would cost Martin his job, the quarrelsome pinstripers staged a gritty three-run rally to defeat the Kansas City Royals 5-3 in the fifth and final American League playoff game.

The Yankees, who beat the Royals with a ninth-inning home run in last year's fifth game and went on to lose four straight to Cincinnati in the World Series, will meet a new foe, the Los Angeles Dodgers, beginning Tuesday night in New York.

"This shows the character of our club," said slugger Reggie Jackson, the $2.9 million free agent who was benched Sunday night in the latest swirl of controversy in the Yankees' soap opera season.

Benched with a 1-for-14 playoff slump, Jackson came through with a pinch-hit single and RBI in the eighth inning to lift the Yankees to within 3-2.

Then Paul Blair, the defensive specialist who replaced Jackson in right field, played his part in the drama by slapping a leadoff single off reliever Dennis Leonard in the ninth and coming around to score the tying run on Mickey Rivers' single.

"I'm glad he stayed with me," said Blair in the joyous Yankee dressing room. "Thank God I came through for him. That's the greatest hit I ever had in my life."

The eighth and ninth innings came down to a game of managerial chess moves between Martin and Kansas City's Whitey Herzog.

Paul Splittorff, the winner in Kansas City's 7-2 victory Wednesday in New York, checked the Yankees on one run through seven innings but ran into difficulty in the eighth when Willie Randolph singled leading off.

Frank White, Royals' second baseman, then ended the inning with a spectacular grab of Chris Chambliss' hot smash.

Larry Gura, the loser in Saturday's contest, was brought in to deal with the pesky Rivers in the ninth and gave up the tying single.

Mike Torrez, who hurled 5 1-3 innings of shutout ball in relief of Ron Guidry, got in trouble in the Royals' eighth by issuing two-out walks to Amos Otis and Pete LaCock, and Martin called upon Sparky Lyle, his lefty bullpen ace who had shut out the Royals in five-plus innings to notch the New York victory Saturday.

Lyle met the challenge, striking out Cookie Rojas to end the eighth and finishing the Royals in the ninth by getting Darrell Porter on a pop fly and Fred Patek on a double play grounder.

"I went in there and cried," Martin said gesturing to the manager's office. "A manager is human. But it's worth it, though. If this is the result, then I'll accept all of it."

With Rivers on first and Roy White, who had walked, on third, Herzog brought in righthander Mark Littell, who watched Willie Randolph send Amos Otis to the warning track in center field with a sacrifice fly that scored White with what proved the winning run. One out later, George Brett fielded Piniella's grounder but threw wildly past first, sending Rivers across the plate with an insurance run.

"It seemed like we just went to pieces after they had two runners on base and nobody out," said Brett, whose scuffle with New York third baseman Graig Nettles triggered a near brawl in the first inning. "We just couldn't get right."

Dodger script from heaven?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tommy Lasorda, the lion-hearted manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, approached the National League playoffs like a zealous warrior preparing for the Holy Wars.

And when his blue-clad crusaders vanquished the Philadelphia Phillies in their own den to earn a trip to the World Series, the rookie manager saw it as a fulfillment of the scriptures.

"It was a tremendous script. To me, it had to be written by God," said Lasorda, oozing with joy after the Dodger Blue rhapsodized the Phillies 4-1 in the rainy conclusion of the league championship Saturday.

Lasorda's troops marched into this forboding city with a feverish cause built on vengeance.

"There were a number of things that irritated us. We got a clipping that said Greg Luzinski said we didn't belong on the same field as the Phillies. Another clipping was Danny Ozark said the series would be over in three. And everybody said we couldn't win at the Vet," said Lasorda.

"This is the greatest thrill of my life."

But the effervescent manager said he wasn't going to lean too heavily on the Big Dodger in the Sky when the World Series opens Tuesday.

"I asked God for all the help he could give me in this one. I'm not going to ask for any help against the other league," Lasorda said.

The Dodgers, powered by Dusty Baker's productive bat and Tommy John's now supple left arm, won three straight games after dropping the series opener at home.

While the Dodgers swigged champagne, the Phillies gagged on the bitter ashes of defeat once more, a victim of their vanishing bats. Philadelphia hit a lusty .279 as a team in the regular season, then slipped to a paltry .225 with the title on the line.

After winning 60 of 81 games at home, the Phillies imitated a wounded elephant coming home to die. They lost two at home, the last one before a raucous record crowd of 64,924 diehards who goaded and baited the Dodgers until the bitter end.

"I'm more hurt by this loss than than any other in my baseball career. I was very optimistic," said a sorrowful Ozark, whose troops were dealt another slap in the face by fate.

Though the Phillies agonized over what could have been, the Dodgers rejoiced. Baker, the series' most valuable player with two homers and a National League record eight RBI, said it best:

"Did you ever see 'Love, American Style' where everything just explodes?" grinned the Dodger center fielder.

"I think the Phillies relied too much on the home field advantage," said Davey Lopes. "They said they just wanted a split in Los Angeles. They felt there was no way we could win two here. That's not the way to think."

The Phillies squandered their home advantage with a crushing defeat in game three. Holding the Dodgers by the throat, the Phillies had a two-run lead with two out and nobody on before Los Angeles made a miracle rally.

"It's simple. Baker had a big series and John pitched us tough. We just never hit, even when we won," said Luzinski, the only Phillie to get a hit in each of the four games.

Having to play for the prestigious National League title in a driving downpour was a nagging irritant to both sides.

"It was a very, very difficult night to play baseball," said Dodgers third baseman Ron Cey. "It was impossible to get good footing in the batter's box. They tried to spread more dirt there in the late innings, but that only made things worse.

"The mud would cake in your spikes and make the bottom of your shoe perfectly flat. When you'd stride, your feet would slip. You couldn't dig in," he added.

"Baseball is not like football. They should have waited. They have old movies they could show at that hour," said Mike Schmidt, the Philadelphia slugger who was shackled to just one single in four games.

Don Sutton will start for the Dodgers.

Martin also said he expected to have right-hander Catfish Hunter start the second game on Wednesday.

However, Gullett had to leave the opening game of the American League playoffs after two innings Wednesday, complaining of a sore pitching shoulder. Hunter has been suffering from a groin infection and has not pitched in more than a month.

NFL roundup

Colts' Jones no quitter

By The Associated Press

Bert Jones doesn't know when to give up.

Midway through the second quarter the Baltimore Colts trailed the Miami Dolphins 28-10. The Dolphins had exploded a 90-yard kickoff return by Freddie Solomon and touchdown runs of 52 and 66 yards by Benny Malone against the Colts.

But Jones, Baltimore's brilliant young quarterback, was not the least bit discouraged.

"I'm an optimist," he explained. "I have the feeling we can do just about anything we want, if we put our minds to it. I knew that there were many things we could still do to score."

So Jones went to work. Touchdown passes of three yards to Glenn Doughty and 19 yards to Raymond Chester cut the deficit to 28-24 by halftime, then a 34-yard pass to Don McCauley in the third quarter put the Colts in front to stay. A 5-yard scoring pass to Doughty later in the period was icing on the cake as the Colts beat the Dolphins 45-28 in a battle of previously unbeaten National Football League powers.

It was a magnificent display by Jones, who completed 18 of 30 passes for 205 yards and four touchdowns, including seven completions in a row on the three scoring drives that put the Colts in front.

Dallas, Oakland and Denver also remained unbeaten after the fourth NFL Sunday, although the Cowboys received a big scare from the St. Louis Cardinals, who led 24-16 before succumbing to a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns as Dallas pulled out a 30-24 victory.

Oakland and Denver coasted towards their American Conference West showdown next Sunday as the Raiders beat the Cleveland Browns 26-10 and the Broncos defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 23-7.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, however, lost more than a football game in bowing to Houston 27-10. Starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw went out with a fractured left wrist in the second period, then reserve Mike Kruczek suffered a shoulder separation on the first play of the fourth period. Rookie Tony Dungy, a reserve safety, was at the helm for the Steelers the rest of the final period.

In other games, the Minnesota Vikings beat the Detroit Lions 14-7, the Washington Redskins blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 10-0, the Atlanta Falcons shut out the San Francisco 49ers 7-0, the Cincinnati Bengals topped the Green Bay Packers 17-7, the San Diego Chargers blanked the New Orleans Saints 14-0, the New England Patriots drubbed the Seattle Seahawks 31-0, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the New York Giants 31-0 and the New York Jets defeated the Buffalo Bills 24-19.

Tonight's game has the Los Angeles Rams at the Chicago Bears.

Baltimore and Miami combined to gain 792 yards — 397 by the Colts, 395 by the Dolphins — the most ever by two NFL teams. The pro record of 871 was set by Boston and San Diego of the American Football League.

It was an emotional showdown, and the Colts had problems getting their emotions under control. "Sometimes you can get too hyper," said end Fred Cook of the Baltimore defense, which shut down Miami in the second half. "I was so hyper in the first quarter, I was making myself tired. I had to stop that very quickly."

It was Jones, Baltimore's poised young signal-caller, who finally got the Colts on an even keel, and they controled play through the last 2½ periods.

Payton gets test vs. Rams

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Payton, the Chicago Bears' nifty running back who leads the National Football League in rushing, will get a severe test tonight against the Los Angeles Rams in a nationally televised game.

Payton leads the NFL in rushing with 336 yards in three games and has scored four touchdowns rushing and one on a pass. The Rams will put up one of the stingiest defenses in the league, one which leads the National Football Conference against the rush.

"Payton is just an excellent, outstanding back," said Los Angeles Coach Chuck Knox. "He won't go to the hole all of the time, if he sees daylight, he's off."

Despite Payton's talents, the key to the game could be defensive tackle Wally Chambers and safety Doug Plank, both of whom have been nursing knee injuries while the Bears suffered losses of 16-13 to St. Louis and 42-24 to New Orleans.

Chambers and Plank have been working out and both are expected to see action. Plank might even start. With the two out of the lineup, Bear defenses have sagged to such a point that the team hasn't had a quarterback sack in the two losses.

"If Chambers plays, the Bears will be a lot tougher," said Knox. "It'll be tough enough coming here with Chicago coming off two losses. We have to be more prepared than anytime this season. If not, we will get our butts knocked off."

In addition to Los Angeles' strong defense, the Bears must cope with a punishing ground attack led by Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappelletti and the passing of Joe Namath. Namath will not have Ron Jessie to throw to. Jessie is out for the season with torn knee ligaments and will be replaced by Dwight Scales.

The Rams are favored by 4½ points. They opened the season with a surprising loss to Atlanta but have won their last two against Philadelphia and San Francisco. The Bears have worked in reverse. They defeated Detroit 30-20 before losing their last two.

Bob Avellini, who won the quarterbacking job from Mike Phipps, has shown improvement. He completed 18 of 38 for 238 yards in the loss to New Orleans and had half a dozen passes dropped.

Favorites flop at World finals drags

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

1977 will be remembered as the year the favorites flopped in the World Finals at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Shirley Muldowney and Don Prudhomme, the defending event champions in their respective classes and both favored to retain their titles, instead came up also-rans.

Prudhomme at least reached the final round in the Funny Car Class. Ms. Muldowney did not even get that far in the Top Fuel category. She lost to Dennis Baca of Concord, Calif. in the semifinal round Sunday before a crowd of 29,497.

Baca then received a gift victory when Graham Light's dragster lost fire at the starting line in the final round.

Gordie Bonin, a Canadian like Light and driving for the same team, upset Prudhome. Bonin's elapsed time was 6.311 seconds to Prudhomme's 6.363 seconds. Prudhomme's first three runs had an e.t. of 6.060, 6.069 and 6.061.

"He (Prudhomme) smoked his tires which is very unusual for him," Bonin said in explaining his victory over the defending two-time champion. "He just doesn't make mistakes. I have to feel the track got away from him."

It was different in the Muldowney-Baca pairing. After the run, in which her elapsed time was only 6.626 seconds compared to Baca's best-of-the-event 5.845 (234.98 mph), it was Ms. Muldowney that was smoking . . . or at least smouldering.

She thought Baca, who took a long time to decide and then seemed to head toward the left lane and then to the right, had pulled a double switch on her.

Baca by virture of having the fastest time the previous round, had the choice of lanes. He was mad because Ms. Muldowney got mad.

"I always tell my opponent the same thing — that I'll take such and such a lane unless there is oil on the track and then I may switch," Baca explained.

"In this case, the car right ahead of us blew an engine and dumped oil in the right hand lane which was the one I had chosen.

"But I had my boys go down and look at it very closely and they thought it looked all right. As I started to pull up, they motioned me over that way (to the right).

"That's all there was to it. I guess because she got beat, she thought it was an excuse to get riled."

Baca's voice had been rising and his face reddeng as he spoke. By this time he was thoroughly angry.

"I picked the right lane and that's the lane I ran in and that's the way it was," he snapped. "The track was very tricky today. You saw what happened to Prudhomme."

The "tricky track" picked on the favorites.

Don Garlits, the 45-year-old "Swamp Rat," barely made the 16-car field for Sunday's Top Fuel finals after laboring through two engine changes Saturday.

Garlits defeated Fresno's Denver Schutz, 6.014 to 6.083 in the first round. But Garlits then fell to Light in the second round, 5.936 to 6.087. It was his first loss ever at OMS.

Ms. Muldowney's best run of the day was in the first round when she eliminated Ron Attebury, 5.927 to 6.219. She slipped to 6.028 in the third.

Ironically, Baca had his slowest run in the first round. He defeated Balboa's Clive Skilton, 6.019. to 6.114. In the second round, he beat Richard Tharp, 5.863 to 6.781. His run against no opponent in round four was timed at 5.977.

Bob Glidden of Whiteland, Indiana won the Pro Stock championship by defeating Don Nicholson of Atlanta in the final round with a time of 8.550 seconds and a speed of 157.34 mph.

The Pro Comp title went to Dave Settles of Dallas who defeated Torrance's Dale Armstrong in 6.730 seconds and a speed of 200.89 mph.

Local driver Jerry Darien of Pomona defeated Ed Renck of Pueblo, Colo., 6.877 to 7.108 in the Pro Comp first round. But Darrien had the misfortune to meet Settles, the eventual winner in round two. Settles won, 6.791 to 6.955.

In Super Stock competition, Cucamonga's Terry Hardy was defeated in the first round by Jim Boburka of Coroapolis, Pa., 11.32 to 12.64.

Dave Boertman of Muskegon, Mich., winningest sportsman driver in NHRA drag racing history, became the first man ever to win four times in the World Finals when he beat Val Hedworth of Rowland Heights in the Super Stock Class.

Dennis Ferrara of Commack, N.Y. won the Competition title; Buddy Ingersoll of Zeigler, Ill. won the Modified; and Florida's Stan Mizell the Stock.

BUDDIES FOR NOW

Owner George Steinbrenner, left, and manager Billy Martin hug each other after the Yankees won the American League pennant Sunday night in Kansas City. Steinbrenner and Martin have had harsh words for each other during season but winning does help cool matters.

Yanks reach Series with dash and drama

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Perfectly befitting their style and reputation, Billy Martin and his New York Yankees barged into a second straight World Series Sunday night with dash, drama, theatrics and controversy.

Three outs away from a defeat that many Yankee watchers felt would cost Martin his job, the quarrelsome pinstripers staged a gritty three-run rally to defeat the Kansas City Royals 5-3 in the fifth and final American League playoff game.

The Yankees, who beat the Royals with a ninth-inning home run in last year's fifth game and went on to lose four straight to Cincinnati in the World Series, will meet a new foe, the Los Angeles Dodgers, beginning Tuesday night in New York.

"This shows the character of our club," said slugger Reggie Jackson, the $2.9 million free agent who was benched Sunday night in the latest swirl of controversy in the Yankees' soap opera season.

Benched with a 1-for-14 playoff slump, Jackson came through with a pinch-hit single and RBI in the eighth inning to lift the Yankees to within 3-2.

Then Paul Blair, the defensive specialist who replaced Jackson in right field, played his part in the drama by slapping a leadoff single off reliever Dennis Leonard in the ninth and coming around to score the tying run on Mickey Rivers' single.

"I'm glad he stayed with me," said Blair in the joyous Yankee dressing room. "Thank God I came through for him. That's the greatest hit I ever had in my life."

The eighth and ninth innings came down to a game of managerial chess moves between Martin and Kansas City's Whitey Herzog.

Paul Splittorff, the winner in Kansas City's 7-2 victory Wednesday in New York, checked the Yankees on one run through seven innings but ran into difficulty in the eighth when Willie Randolph singled leading off.

Frank White, Royals' second baseman, then ended the inning with a spectacular grab of Chris Chambliss' hot smash.

Larry Gura, the loser in Saturday's contest, was brought in to deal with the pesky Rivers in the ninth and gave up the tying single.

Mike Torrez, who hurled 5 1-3 innings of shutout ball in relief of Ron Guidry, got in trouble in the Royals' eighth by issuing two-out walks to Amos Otis and Pete LaCock, and Martin called upon Sparky Lyle, his lefty bullpen ace who had shut out the Royals in five-plus innings to notch the New York victory Saturday.

Lyle met the challenge, striking out Cookie Rojas to end the eighth and finishing the Royals in the ninth by getting Darrell Porter on a pop fly and Fred Patek on a double play grounder.

"I went in there and cried," Martin said gesturing to the manager's office. "A manager is human. But it's worth it, though. If this is the result, then I'll accept all of it."

With Rivers on first and Roy White, who had walked, on third, Herzog brought in righthander Mark Littell, who watched Willie Randolph send Amos Otis to the warning track in center field with a sacrifice fly that scored White with what proved the winning run. One out later, George Brett fielded Piniella's grounder but threw wildly past first, sending Rivers across the plate with an insurance run.

"It seemed like we just went to pieces after they had two runners on base and nobody out," said Brett, whose scuffle with New York third baseman Graig Nettles triggered a near brawl in the first inning. "We just couldn't get right."

Dodger script from heaven?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tommy Lasorda, the lion-hearted manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, approached the National League playoffs like a zealous warrior preparing for the Holy Wars.

And when his blue-clad crusaders vanquished the Philadelphia Phillies in their own den to earn a trip to the World Series, the rookie manager saw it as a fulfillment of the scriptures.

"It was a tremendous script. To me, it had to be written by God," said Lasorda, oozing with joy after the Dodger Blue rhapsodized the Phillies 4-1 in the rainy conclusion of the league championship Saturday.

Lasorda's troops marched into this forboding city with a feverish cause built on vengeance.

"There were a number of things that irritated us. We got a clipping that said Greg Luzinski said we didn't belong on the same field as the Phillies. Another clipping was Danny Ozark said the series would be over in three. And everybody said we couldn't win at the Vet," said Lasorda.

"This is the greatest thrill of my life."

But the effervescent manager said he wasn't going to lean too heavily on the Big Dodger in the Sky when the World Series opens Tuesday.

"I asked God for all the help he could give me in this one. I'm not going to ask for any help against the other league," Lasorda said.

The Dodgers, powered by Dusty Baker's productive bat and Tommy John's now supple left arm, won three straight games after dropping the series opener at home.

While the Dodgers swigged champagne, the Phillies gagged on the bitter ashes of defeat once more, a victim of their vanishing bats. Philadelphia hit a lusty .279 as a team in the regular season, then slipped to a paltry .225 with the title on the line.

After winning 60 of 81 games at home, the Phillies imitated a wounded elephant coming home to die. They lost two at home, the last one before a raucous record crowd of 64,924 diehards who goaded and baited the Dodgers until the bitter end.

"I'm more hurt by this loss than than any other in my baseball career. I was very optimistic," said a sorrowful Ozark, whose troops were dealt another slap in the face by fate.

Though the Phillies agonized over what could have been, the Dodgers rejoiced. Baker, the series' most valuable player with two homers and a National League record eight RBI, said it best:

"Did you ever see 'Love, American Style' where everything just explodes?" grinned the Dodger center fielder.

"I think the Phillies relied too much on the home field advantage," said Davey Lopes. "They said they just wanted a split in Los Angeles. They felt there was no way we could win two here. That's not the way to think."

The Phillies squandered their home advantage with a crushing defeat in game three. Holding the Dodgers by the throat, the Phillies had a two-run lead with two out and nobody on before Los Angeles made a miracle rally.

"It's simple. Baker had a big series and John pitched us tough. We just never hit, even when we won," said Luzinski, the only Phillie to get a hit in each of the four games.

Having to play for the prestigious National League title in a driving downpour was a nagging irritant to both sides.

"It was a very, very difficult night to play baseball," said Dodgers third baseman Ron Cey. "It was impossible to get good footing in the batter's box. They tried to spread more dirt there in the late innings, but that only made things worse.

"The mud would cake in your spikes and make the bottom of your shoe perfectly flat. When you'd stride, your feet would slip. You couldn't dig in," he added.

"Baseball is not like football. They should have waited. They have old movies they could show at that hour," said Mike Schmidt, the Philadelphia slugger who was shackled to just one single in four games.

Gullett will start for N.Y.

Don Sutton will start for the Dodgers.

Martin also said he expected to have right-hander Catfish Hunter start the second game on Wednesday.

However, Gullett had to leave the opening game of the American League playoffs after two innings Wednesday, complaining of a sore pitching shoulder. Hunter has been suffering from a groin infection and has not pitched in more than a month.

NFL roundup

Colts' Jones no quitter

By The Associated Press

Bert Jones doesn't know when to give up.

Midway through the second quarter the Baltimore Colts trailed the Miami Dolphins 28-10. The Dolphins had exploded a 90-yard kickoff return by Freddie Solomon and touchdown runs of 52 and 66 yards by Benny Malone against the Colts.

But Jones, Baltimore's brilliant young quarterback, was not the least bit discouraged.

"I'm an optimist," he explained. "I have the feeling we can do just about anything we want, if we put our minds to it. I knew that there were many things we could still do to score."

So Jones went to work. Touchdown passes of three yards to Glenn Doughty and 19 yards to Raymond Chester cut the deficit to 28-24 by halftime, then a 34-yard pass to Don McCauley in the third quarter put the Colts in front to stay. A 5-yard scoring pass to Doughty later in the period was icing on the cake as the Colts beat the Dolphins 45-28 in a battle of previously unbeaten National Football League powers.

It was a magnificent display by Jones, who completed 18 of 30 passes for 205 yards and four touchdowns, including seven completions in a row on the three scoring drives that put the Colts in front.

Dallas, Oakland and Denver also remained unbeaten after the fourth NFL Sunday, although the Cowboys received a big scare from the St. Louis Cardinals, who led 24-16 before succumbing to a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns as Dallas pulled out a 30-24 victory.

Oakland and Denver coasted towards their American Conference West showdown next Sunday as the Raiders beat the Cleveland Browns 26-10 and the Broncos defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 23-7.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, however, lost more than a football game in bowing to Houston 27-10. Starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw went out with a fractured left wrist in the second period, then reserve Mike Kruczek suffered a shoulder separation on the first play of the fourth period. Rookie Tony Dungy, a reserve safety, was at the helm for the Steelers the rest of the final period.

In other games, the Minnesota Vikings beat the Detroit Lions 14-7, the Washington Redskins blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 10-0, the Atlanta Falcons shut out the San Francisco 49ers 7-0, the Cincinnati Bengals topped the Green Bay Packers 17-7, the San Diego Chargers blanked the New Orleans Saints 14-0, the New England Patriots drubbed the Seattle Seahawks 31-0, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the New York Giants 31-0 and the New York Jets defeated the Buffalo Bills 24-19.

Tonight's game has the Los Angeles Rams at the Chicago Bears.

Baltimore and Miami combined to gain 792 yards — 397 by the Colts, 395 by the Dolphins — the most ever by two NFL teams. The pro record of 871 was set by Boston and San Diego of the American Football League.

It was an emotional showdown, and the Colts had problems getting their emotions under control. "Sometimes you can get too hyper," said end Fred Cook of the Baltimore defense, which shut down Miami in the second half. "I was so hyper in the first quarter, I was making myself tired. I had to stop that very quickly."

It was Jones, Baltimore's poised young signal-caller, who finally got the Colts on an even keel, and they controled play through the last 2½ periods.

Payton gets test vs. Rams

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Payton, the Chicago Bears' nifty running back who leads the National Football League in rushing, will get a severe test tonight against the Los Angeles Rams in a nationally televised game.

Payton leads the NFL in rushing with 336 yards in three games and has scored four touchdowns rushing and one on a pass. The Rams will put up one of the stingiest defenses in the league, one which leads the National Football Conference against the rush.

"Payton is just an excellent, outstanding back," said Los Angeles Coach Chuck Knox. "He won't go to the hole all of the time, if he sees daylight, he's off."

Despite Payton's talents, the key to the game could be defensive tackle Wally Chambers and safety Doug Plank, both of whom have been nursing knee injuries while the Bears suffered losses of 16-13 to St. Louis and 42-24 to New Orleans.

Chambers and Plank have been working out and both are expected to see action. Plank might even start. With the two out of the lineup, Bear defenses have sagged to such a point that the team hasn't had a quarterback sack in the two losses.

"If Chambers plays, the Bears will be a lot tougher," said Knox. "It'll be tough enough coming here with Chicago coming off two losses. We have to be more prepared than anytime this season. If not, we will get our butts knocked off."

In addition to Los Angeles' strong defense, the Bears must cope with a punishing ground attack led by Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappelletti and the passing of Joe Namath. Namath will not have Ron Jessie to throw to. Jessie is out for the season with torn knee ligaments and will be replaced by Dwight Scales.

The Rams are favored by 4½ points. They opened the season with a surprising loss to Atlanta but have won their last two against Philadelphia and San Francisco. The Bears have worked in reverse. They defeated Detroit 30-20 before losing their last two.

Bob Avellini, who won the quarterbacking job from Mike Phipps, has shown improvement. He completed 18 of 38 for 238 yards in the loss to New Orleans and had half a dozen passes dropped.

KAANAPALI, Hawaii — Top seeded Jimmy Connors defeated second seeded Brian Gottfried 6-2, 6-0 to capture the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Island Holidays Pro Tennis Classic.

Parsons big winner

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Benny Parsons became only the sixth driver in the history of Grand National stock car racing to collect more than $1 million prize money in his career as he scored an overpowering victory in the $250,000 National 500.

Pat McDonald of Ridgecrest, Calif., finished with a 68, giving him a 278 total for third place. He won $2,400.

Ray Arinno wins Long Beach Open

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Ray Arinno of Sacramento, Calif., fired a five-under-par 67 Sunday to win the $30,000 Long Beach Queen Mary Open by two strokes over Alan Tapie of Irvine, Calif.

The 30-year-old touring pro, who tied a course record by carding a 64 Saturday, collected five birdies and no bogeys to establish a tournament record of 275, 13-under-par for 72 holes on the El Dorado Municipal golf course.

The $6,000 won by Arinno was the largest paycheck of his career.

Tapie, the third-round leader, shot 70 Sunday and had a chance to tie Arinno on the final hole. He took a bogey instead and settled for $3,600 with a score of 277.

Pat McDonald of Ridgecrest, Calif., finished with a 68, giving him a 278 total for third place. He won $2,400.

Mike Booker of Houston, Tex., and Mark Pfeil of Palos Verdes, Calif., tied for fourth at 281, worth $1,525. One stroke further back were Steve Taylor of Sacramento, Calif., Jeff Van Wagenen of Northridge, Calif., Don Pooley of Riverside, Calif., and Calvin Peete of Albany, Ga.

At 283 were Pete Brown of Los Angeles, Jeff Hewes of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Jack Ewing of Capistrano Beach, Calif. Bobby Clark of Santa Ana, Calif., and Pat McGowan of Colusa, Calif., finished at 284.

Ralph Kiner hit four grand slams for the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1949.

Yanks' fans demonstrate

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A raucous and unruly crowd estimated at between 1,500-5,000 people caused a near-riot early today when they turned out at Newark Airport to welcome the New York Yankees back home as 1977 American League champions.

At first, the crowd was content to blow airhorns and wave home-made signs but eventually dozens of persons, mostly teenagers, scrambled up the sides of the portable steps to the team's plane.

Owner George Steinbrenner, one of the first off the charter flight, pumped his fist in the air and a number of players raised their index fingers in the familiar "We're No. 1 signal."

"The situation was so bad we had to stop collecting parking fees and just let the cars come into the lot without paying, otherwise we probably would have had a riot on our hands," said a Port Authority of New York policeman.

Trojans, Bears toppled

By The Associated Press

Southern California and California, the only remaining unbeaten and nationally ranked teams in the Pacific-8 Conference, have tumbled from their lofty positions.

Southern California ran into fired up Alabama Saturday and the seventh-ranked Crimson Tide dropped the No. 1-rated Trojans 21-20 on Southern Cal's home turf.

Surprising Cal, ranked 14th after a 4-0 start, tripped over tough Washington State 17-10, as the Bears' last minute drive collapsed on the Cougars' 10yard line.

Elsewhere in the Pac-8, explosive Stanford won it's fourth straight with a 32-28 upset over UCLA, Washington clobbered Oregon 54-0 and Oregon State dumped previously unbeaten Brigham Young 24-19.

"I think we got a little help from upstairs," Alabama Coach Bear Bryant said Saturday after the win over USC. "We were lucky to get out of it."

Alabama halfback Tony Nathan ran for two fourth quarter touchdowns to give the Tide a 21-6 lead, but USC rambled back into the game and might have won if a two-point conversion attempt had succeeded.

Quarterback Rob Hertel threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Calvin Sweeney and a two-point conversion try was successful to make it 21-14, then Hertel guided the Trojans on a 79-yard march which culminated in Lynn Cain's one-yard sweep with 39 seconds left.

USC went for the two-point conversion, but Hertel's desperation pass was interecepted by Barry Krauss.

In Pullman, Washington State quarterback Jack Thompson passed for 296 yards, but the Cougars had to withstand the last-minute heroics of reserve quarterback Gary Graumann to win.

Graumann fired a 21-yard touchdown pass to Floyd Eddings with 1:09 remaining. After holding Washington State on downs, the Bears took over on their own 40 yard line and worked their way to a first down at the Cougar 10.

But with nine seconds left, George Yarno sacked Graumann to clinch the victory.

At Stanford, reserve quarterback Steve Dils completed 24 of 37 passes for 287 yards and freshman Darrin Nelson carried 22 times for 187 yards as the Cardinals beat UCLA for the first time since 1971.

Tailbacks Joe Steele and Kyle Stevens ran for two touchdowns each and end Scott Greenwood scored once with a pass and once with a recovered fumbie to lead Washington's rout of Oregon.

OSU's upset of Brigham Young was marred by a knee injury suffered by BYU quarterback Gifford Nielsen, college football's leading passer. He will be out for the season.

In another upset, Fresno State chopped off San Diego State's 10-game win streak with a 34-14 victory. Fullback Steve Franklin and quarterback Dean Jones combined for 240 yards rushing for the Bulldogs

In other games, San Jose State mauled Santa Clara 44-22, Pacific trounced Hawaii 37-7 and Fullerton State dumped Northeast Louisiana 31-10.

Why House of Windsor is Red Skelton's favorite cigar.

Red Skelton's tried some cigars that are more expensive than House of Windsor Palmas, but never one that's better.

The reason is that our Palmas are made from only the choicest imported filler tobaccos and then carefully wrapped in specially selected Honduran natural or candela leaf.

The result: quality and value rolled into one rich, smooth-smoking cigar. House of Windsor Palmas, shapely Sportsman or full-sized Panatelas—they've got the kind of taste that could make you forget you ever smoked anything else.

There's extra quality in every size and shape.

'Vegas Night scheduled

The Diamond Bar Pop Warner League will hold a Las Vegas Night on Saturday, Oct. 22, at Diamond Point Swim Club No. 2.

A social hour will begin at 6:30 followed by a barbecue steak dinner with all the trimmings at 7:30 with the games beginning at 8:30.

Yanks' fans demonstrate

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A raucous and unruly crowd estimated at between 1,500-5,000 people caused a near-riot early today when they turned out at Newark Airport to welcome the New York Yankees back home as 1977 American League champions.

At first, the crowd was content to blow airhorns and wave home-made signs but eventually dozens of persons, mostly teenagers, scrambled up the sides of the portable steps to the team's plane.

Owner George Steinbrenner, one of the first off the charter flight, pumped his fist in the air and a number of players raised their index fingers in the familiar "We're No. 1 signal."

"The situation was so bad we had to stop collecting parking fees and just let the cars come into the lot without paying, otherwise we probably would have had a riot on our hands," said a Port Authority of New York policeman.

Trojans, Bears toppled

By The Associated Press

Southern California and California, the only remaining unbeaten and nationally ranked teams in the Pacific-8 Conference, have tumbled from their lofty positions.

Southern California ran into fired up Alabama Saturday and the seventh-ranked Crimson Tide dropped the No. 1-rated Trojans 21-20 on Southern Cal's home turf.

Surprising Cal, ranked 14th after a 4-0 start, tripped over tough Washington State 17-10, as the Bears' last minute drive collapsed on the Cougars' 10yard line.

Elsewhere in the Pac-8, explosive Stanford won it's fourth straight with a 32-28 upset over UCLA, Washington clobbered Oregon 54-0 and Oregon State dumped previously unbeaten Brigham Young 24-19.

"I think we got a little help from upstairs," Alabama Coach Bear Bryant said Saturday after the win over USC. "We were lucky to get out of it."

Alabama halfback Tony Nathan ran for two fourth quarter touchdowns to give the Tide a 21-6 lead, but USC rambled back into the game and might have won if a two-point conversion attempt had succeeded.

Quarterback Rob Hertel threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Calvin Sweeney and a two-point conversion try was successful to make it 21-14, then Hertel guided the Trojans on a 79-yard march which culminated in Lynn Cain's one-yard sweep with 39 seconds left.

USC went for the two-point conversion, but Hertel's desperation pass was interecepted by Barry Krauss.

In Pullman, Washington State quarterback Jack Thompson passed for 296 yards, but the Cougars had to withstand the last-minute heroics of reserve quarterback Gary Graumann to win.

Graumann fired a 21-yard touchdown pass to Floyd Eddings with 1:09 remaining. After holding Washington State on downs, the Bears took over on their own 40 yard line and worked their way to a first down at the Cougar 10.

But with nine seconds left, George Yarno sacked Graumann to clinch the victory.

At Stanford, reserve quarterback Steve Dils completed 24 of 37 passes for 287 yards and freshman Darrin Nelson carried 22 times for 187 yards as the Cardinals beat UCLA for the first time since 1971.

Tailbacks Joe Steele and Kyle Stevens ran for two touchdowns each and end Scott Greenwood scored once with a pass and once with a recovered fumbie to lead Washington's rout of Oregon.

OSU's upset of Brigham Young was marred by a knee injury suffered by BYU quarterback Gifford Nielsen, college football's leading passer. He will be out for the season.

In another upset, Fresno State chopped off San Diego State's 10-game win streak with a 34-14 victory. Fullback Steve Franklin and quarterback Dean Jones combined for 240 yards rushing for the Bulldogs

In other games, San Jose State mauled Santa Clara 44-22, Pacific trounced Hawaii 37-7 and Fullerton State dumped Northeast Louisiana 31-10.

I'd switch the ignition off but the engine wouldn't stop. Instead it sputtered, rocked and coughed. Then I discovered WYNN'S® SPIT-FIRE. Now my troubles are over," writes a happy user. PALMAS
4 CIGARS

Why House of Windsor is Red Skelton's favorite cigar.

Red Skelton's tried some cigars that are more expensive than House of Windsor Palmas, but never one that's better.

The reason is that our Palmas are made from only the choicest imported filler tobaccos and then carefully wrapped in specially selected Honduran natural or candela leaf.

The result: quality and value rolled into one rich, smooth-smoking cigar. House of Windsor Palmas, shapely Sportsman or full-sized Panatelas—they've got the kind of taste that could make you forget you ever smoked anything else.

There's extra quality in every size and shape.
